EIGHT GEORGIANS
VOTE TO OVERRIDE

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Joining hands with 302 other members of the house eight out of ten of the Georgia delegation in the lower chamber of congress today voted to override President Roosevelt's veto of the independent officers' appropriation bill containing substantial increases in compensation for veterans.

Representative Edward E. Cox, of Canaan, and Representative Emmett M. Owen, of Griffin, were the only two members of the Georgia delegation to stand by the president and vote to sustain the veto.

Those voting to override were Representatives Homer C. Parker, of Statesboro; Bryant T. Castellow, of Cutbert; Robert R. McMillen, of Atlanta; Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville; Malcolm C. Tarver, of Dalton; Braswell Deen, of Alma; John S. Wood, of Canton, and Paul Brown, of Elberton.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—And shouts and cheers, the house broke away from President Roosevelt in open revolt today to override his veto of congressional plans for bigger veterans' allowances and more pay for federal workers.

In direct defiance of the president on a major issue, 310 members voted against the president. He found only 72 supporters, two of them Republicans—Lucas and Tinkham, of Massachusetts. Two hundred and nine Democrats joined 97 Republicans and four Independents in voting against his recommendations.

The vote left to the senate the matter of deciding finally whether the presidential veto shall be sustained. Leaders decided to put the vote off there until tomorrow or later, and held to this decision despite an attempt to force a ballot today.

President Roosevelt in his veto message objected that the added funds written into the independent officers' supply bill by the house as an act of war would upset his budget plans, take money needed for emergency relief and violate principles he believed should govern the allowance of veterans' compensation.

There was a little delay over getting the vote started, however, despite the reading of the veto message. Debate is allowed on such a question.

Once under way, frequent applause and cheers signified that well-known Democrats had voted against or for

LAST-MINUTE JAM
BARS FINAL VOTE

Action Now Likely To Be Delayed Until Veterans' Veto Issue Is Disposed Of.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—A final vote on the Bankhead cotton bill was blocked in the senate today by a last-minute parliamentary jam after the measure had been loaded with amendments, one of which would limit operation of the law to a single year.

Half a dozen times a final vote was about to be taken, only to be blocked by another amendment offered, and finally the decision was postponed until adjournment for the night to prevent action on President Roosevelt's veto of the independent officers' appropriation bill.

The veto message now has precedence over the cotton bill, which probably will mean another day or two of delay on the Bankhead measure. Leaders forecast a close vote.

A long string of amendments added to the bill at the suggestion of opponents, included stringent limitations which friends of the measure feared would destroy its usefulness, and a couple designed to ridicule the legislation.

Language Changed.
The latter, offered by Senator Gore, democrat, Oklahoma, changed language permitting the secretary of agriculture to make regulations for carrying out the law to give him power to "enact such penal statutes" as might be necessary.

Friends of the legislation knew they could remedy these amendments with the house, but were more concerned over the serious limitations.

NEW LABOR BOARD
SET INTO MOTION
RAYON FROM PINE

Mediation Group Begins Work; Wolman Named Neutral Representative.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The administration's newest piece of labor dispute conciliation machinery—the three-man board for the automobile industry—was set into motion today amid new proposals for changing the Wagner bill to make the national labor board a fixed government agency.

Leo Wolman, named as the neutral representative of the automobile industry, was expected to find it necessary to curtail his activities as chairman of the NRA's labor advisory board and a professorship which he practices at Columbia.

The other two members of the auto board were set up to settle disputes in the long discussions which led to forming a strike in that industry. Nicholas Kelley, attorney for the Chrysler Corporation, and Richard L. Byrd, employee of General Motors, at Pontiac, Mich. Kelley is the industry's representative, Byrd the workers'.

The senate labor committee on its hearings on the Wagner labor board bill today heard from a spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, James E. Emery, a suggestion that a tribunal of non-partisan character be set up to settle disputes. He proposed this as a substitute for the national labor board which the bill would equip with definite legal powers.

"Boards with arbitrary powers," Emery told the committee, "talk in terms of conflict and bitterness." Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, asserted, would be placed Continued in Page 2, Column 7.

Chemist Tells Rotarians of Recent Experiments With Georgia Pulp.

Georgia slash pine will not only produce a newsprint pulp at one-half the cost now being paid by the mills of the north and Canada, but also will provide a pulp suitable for manufacturing rayon. Dr. Charles H. Herty said Tuesday.

Speaking before the Atlanta Rotary Club, the noted chemist who for nearly four years has been perfecting the process of making newsprint pulp in commercial quantities out of Georgia pine, declared that his researches have proven that newsprint which now is sold on the New York market at $40 a ton and which it is said will sell for $55 a ton before the year is out, can be manufactured in Georgia at $20 a ton, and being a fair margin of profit to the manufacturers.

The scientist who is carrying on his work in behalf of the Savannah Industrial Foundation, Inc., accompanied the pulp wood in the various stages of its newsprint making process.

"When I first spoke of this vast project in Atlanta three and a half years ago I was able to display paper made from Georgia pine, but I was not convinced that it was practicable to manufacture it as we could compete with the product of the north and Canadian companies," Dr. Herty said. "I have here today samples of paper which not only is a better grade than is now obtainable, but is also much cheaper in price."

The scientist displayed white, pink and green paper similar to that being used by the Atlanta dailies.

Concerning the processing for pulp for rayon manufacture, Dr. Herty said: "Our laboratory at Savannah has just recently added a noted chemical engineer who is to work out the commercial process for making pulp which will be manufactured into materials for the making of rayon."

He said that he had an unlimited quantity of slash pine in Georgia and with rayon manufacturers using the pulp of this state, their goods not only can be put on the market cheaper, but they can use a Georgia product and eliminate the need for bringing materials down from the north to their factories here.

Dr. Herty cited statistics to show that more than $20,000,000 is being expended annually in the United States for rayon.

Pressing Business Demands Given as Reason for Moultrie's Decision Against Campaign.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—W. J. Vereen said here today that the demands of his business would make it impossible for him to be a candidate for governor this year.

Mr. Vereen, who is one of the prominent textile manufacturers and business men of Georgia, has just returned home from a trip to Washington on business matters and also from a visit to the southern cotton mills of the Pepperell Manufacturing Company.

He was accompanied on this trip by Russell Leonard, president of the Pepperell company.

Mr. Vereen issued the following statement today: "I am greatly honored to be mentioned in connection with the governorship and specially at this time when the whole country is moving along to better times under the superb leadership of President Roosevelt. I recognize that there is a genuine opportunity for selfless service in our state."

"I have spent the greater part of the last 12 months in Washington, trying to assist the congress and the administration during the emergency. It has been necessary for me to neglect my own affairs and the burden has fallen upon my business associates."

"It is therefore impossible for me to answer the call of my good friends throughout the state and I wish to convey to them my sincerest and deepest appreciation for their expressions of confidence."

Wrigley Sets Up Fund To Protect Employees

CHICAGO, March 27.—(UPI)—Directors and stockholders of William Wrigley Jr. Company, chewing gum manufacturers, voted today to appropriate $1,000,000 for establishment of a plan of "employment assurance."

The plan provides for payment of a percentage of the average wage to any employee laid off. The percentage will be on a sliding scale, with the workers in the lowest brackets receiving one-half of their wages during an idle period.

"The company," Philip K. Wrigley, president, said, "has built up a large surplus to guarantee payment of dividends to stockholders on their investments during slack periods. We felt that the workers should receive the same protection."

"I hope that no one will make any of the surplus of the company and employees are not required to contribute to maintenance of the fund. It will be our duty, eventually, to 2,000 employees of the company."

Insull Changed Ships, Athens Lawyer Reports

ATHENS, March 27.—(AP)—Samuel Insull's lawyer, M. Pop, said tonight he believed the fugitive financier was no longer on the Greek vessel Malis and that he had been transferred Sunday off the island of Rhodes to another ship flying a flag belonging to some nation not having an extradition treaty with the United States.

ADAMS CUTS WAGE OF STATE CHEMIST

Dr. Clark's Pay, Set by Law at $4,000, Is Reduced to $3,000 Yearly.

Commissioner of Agriculture G. C. Adams Tuesday reduced the salary of Dr. C. Reynolds Clark, state chemist, from the $4,000 fixed by law to $3,000. No announcement came from the commissioner but it was presumed that the slash was ordered for economy reasons as the department is operating on a greatly reduced budget this year.

Dr. Clark said that he had not agreed to the cut, adding that he had conferences during the day with both Governor Eugene Talmadge and Commissioner Adams, quoting the commissioner as saying that he would pay the full statutory salary if he could be convinced that the law required it.

The chemist emphasized that the conference were of a friendly nature.

Last year when the department expected the greater part of its appropriation during the first six months of the year the division heads voluntarily accepted a salary cut. This, however, was general and was borne by all on an equal basis.

Although the salary of Dr. Clark is fixed by law, the legislature does not make a specific appropriation for the general appropriation to the department. Some observers said Tuesday they believed that if Dr. Clark forced the payment of the full salary, but on the other hand they pointed to the case of Dr. J. M. Sutton, state veterinarian, whose salary also is fixed by law, but who is now without office and unable to obtain his salary.

Commissioner Adams has promoted H. K. Ramsey, until recently statistician in the department, to the post of chief fertilizer inspector, succeeding Fred T. Bridges, who recently resigned. John Darsey has been named statistician succeeding Mr. Ramsey.

MARTIN INSULL BEGINS TRIP BACK TO CHICAGO

TORONTO, March 27.—(AP)—Martin J. Insull, former Illinois utilities operator, departed tonight in charge of United States authorities to face trial in Cook county on charges of grand larceny and embezzlement. He was placed aboard a train shortly after 10 o'clock.

The Class A railroads of the state which have received big increases in their tax assessments from Comptroller General William B. Harrison are planning to name jointly one man as their representative on the arbitration board which is expected to settle the assessments as soon as the railroads have formally notified Mr. Harrison that they will not accept his figures.

It could not be learned Tuesday whom the representatives of the railroads will be, but his identity is expected to be made known between now and April 6, the last day the roads have to act on the comptroller's figures.

Ten independent telephone companies also have received assessment increases and although they have stated publicly they will resist the hikes no formal action has been taken.

6 FIRMS INCREASE WAGE RATE 10 PCT.

Leading Steel Producers Reported Considering Raising Pay.

By the Associated Press.

Six outstanding manufacturing plants yesterday announced plans for an approximate 10 per cent wage increase while a general movement for such a wage was reported under way through the steel industry.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, said in Pittsburgh his concern would increase wages approximately 10 per cent effective April 1. Approximately 18,000 of the National Steel's employees would benefit.

Similarly, the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation announced that they would increase wages approximately 10 per cent, involving 17,000 workers.

The American Rolling Mill Company and the Wheeling Steel Corporation similarly announced that wage increases of approximately 10 per cent would be effective April 1. Steel trade quarters estimated that a 10 per cent wage boost for hourly piecework and tonnage workers would raise the cost of producing steel about $1.30 a ton on the basis of average operations of around 40 per cent capacity.

The Mullins Manufacturing Corporation, of Salem, Ohio, yesterday announced a pay increase of approximately 10 per cent for its 1,800 employees and the stockholders of the Corn Products Refining Company were informed in New York that a 10 per cent increase had been put in effect for between 2,200 and 2,400 workers of that organization who are on an hourly basis. Business improvement also was reported.

SENATE BODY GETS NEW STOCK BILL

Measure Expected To Be Submitted for Action Before Week-End.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The senate banking committee took up the provisionally-indorsed stock market control bill in executive session today with expectation of giving the measure its approval before the week-end and submitting it for action on the floor.

On the one hand, the committee was equipped with a mandate from President Roosevelt to avoid any changes that would weaken the bill and a warning that it had been made the target of a "highly organized" opposition drive.

On the other, its record contained a long list of amendments proposed by Richard Whitney, president of the New York Stock Exchange, in summation of the voluminous opposition testimony submitted in the course of a month of hearings.

The committee's report proposed a somewhat different method of approaching the problem than that embodied in the bill, asking primarily that a special commission be created to administer the measure.

Open hearings on the measure were completed this morning with the receipt of Whitney's amendments, which, generally speaking, would remove the bill's hard and fast rules and leave virtually everything to the discretionary regulation of the federal reserve board or the federal trade commission.

Committee members were struck, they said, with a change in the tactics of the exchange representatives in a shift of emphasis from demands for

Woman Ends Life After Losing Pet Dogs

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—(UP)—Mrs. Edith Stewart, 54, swallowed poison here today, two weeks after the humane society impounded her five dogs which were her constant companions.

Mrs. Stewart said she could not live without her pets. Physicians were doubtful of her recovery.

"All I had in the world was my dogs and they have killed them," she said at the hospital. "They broke into my bedroom and took them away."

At the close of the hearing, Chairman Fletcher said into the record the letter of President Roosevelt saying the bill met "minimum requirements" and that "none of us could afford to have it weakened in any particular."

In reply to the president's assertions, that excessive speculation was a major contributing factor in the boom and collapse of 1929 and the depression years that followed, Whitney issued a statement of denial.

"I am not in accord with the thought that the speculative excesses of 1929 and preceding years were to a material extent caused by or due to our stock exchanges or the way in which they operated," he said.

"I am not in accord with the thought that the stock market panic of 1929 was the cause instead of the effect of the earlier stages of the industrial depression."

"I believe that the evils which this proposed legislation seek to remedy can be cured without risking the dangers inherent in this bill of delaying the return of prosperity."

BYRD PREPARES FOR HIBERNATION

tennes, the weather vane and the spinning anemometer cups.

Byrd, enthusiastic about the lonely winter vigil, has equipped the shack with both weather recording instruments and those for the study of polar meteorological phenomena. Inside the cabin are three radios, one power set and two auxiliary sets powered by a hand generator.

Byrd familiarized himself with the code during recent weeks and believes he will be able to "send" to his northward base. His call letters are KFY.

The commander does not expect to leave the "first interior weather station maintained on the Antarctic continent" before the first of October, and may remain at the base for the full eight-month winter period.

Before leaving Little America, Byrd warned his companions against fears for his safety in the event that communication between the bases was interrupted.

"The silence of KFY means that either I cannot operate the damn thing, or else don't want to," he said.

Thomas C. Poulter, senior scientist of the expedition, will be in charge of the 55 men at Little America. Poulter and Byrd recently mapped out a winter and spring schedule for the camp.

Radio reports from the base late today indicated that the construction of the shack was about completed, although the amateur carpenters worked in 60 degrees below zero temperature, and in the midst of a blizzard that came up during the night.

The shack will be a fireproof as possible, and as warm as human ingenuity can make a one-room, snow covered cottage. An ample supply and fuel and food will be cached in tunnels leading to outlying snow walls.

REVISIONS MADE IN BANKHEAD BILL

Amendment To Limit Life of Law to Year Voted by Senate.

democrat, North Carolina, would permit farmers to produce up to six bales without limitation. It provided, however, that the total cotton should not exceed 10,000,000 bales.

Bailey originally offered the amendment to permit eight bales, but Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democrat leader, said this would defeat the whole purpose of the bill.

Another amendment, offered by Senator Dickinson, republican, Iowa, and perfected by Senator Reynolds, democrat, North Carolina, would limit the operation of the law to a single year. As passed by the house, the bill would operate for two years, and the president could then extend it for another.

Senator Rankhead, democrat, Alabama, author of the bill, obtained approval of an amendment to increase the tax on over-quota production from 10 to 75 per cent of the market value of the cotton.

Amendments by Senator Hayden, democrat, Arizona, and Johnson, republican, California, to remove the cotton of 1 1/2-inch staple or longer, largely grown in California and Arizona, and to prevent a quota from being less than 200,000 bales if it has produced 250,000 bales within the past five years, were also adopted.

Another Bailey amendment which gained approval would cut the penalty for violations of the law from $1,000 fine or imprisonment up to a year down to $100 fine.

Senator King, democrat, Utah, secured approval of an amendment eliminating authority for the secretary of agriculture to buy excess cotton for relief purposes at a price up to 55 per cent of the central market price and to use it in experiments to develop new uses of the staple.

As the final vote on the bill seemed to be approaching it was subjected to vigorous attack from both sides of the aisle.

King said such legislation might be justified in time of war, but no emergency existed today which warranted such action.

Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, predicted it would lead to "such resentment" that it will take the whole American army to enforce it.

He denounced it as "an invasion of independent liberty" and said it would subject citizens to the will of minor officials in Washington who were not subject to the vote of the people.

EXTORTION PLOT SUSPECT KILLED

in the day by officers who suspected him of complicity in the plot against Mr. Hanna. A negro was responsible for sending him to a quiet road at the edge of the city last night to obtain a package which had been tossed from an automobile as a decoy by the Hanna chauffeur.

Officers surrounded the spot where the package was dropped. A negro hurried from the bushes, seized the packet and fled while the officers fired a volley of shots at him. The posse spread out and a short time later arrested a negro a short distance away, but he squirmed and slipped into the darkness as more shots were fired.

Locally Plotted.

Sheriff C. E. Davis today expressed the belief that the plot was formed locally by those who thought they saw a chance to make easy money. The opinion was shared by J. H. Hanna, the father of the victim, who said the progress of the search were received at the estate—Melrose plantation—by telephone.

Two notes demanding the money were written Hanna, who maintains an extensive country estate here, the first March 20 and the second last Saturday. The plotters never kept the first rendezvous, although a dummy package was dropped and watched by officers.

Second Extortion Note.

The second note told Hanna the plotters had noted the trap set at the first rendezvous and didn't want to "kill" to get the money. The financier was warned "we'll get you" in event the second set of instructions were not carried out.

Hanna, meanwhile at his estate, Melrose plantation, with his wife and five children, was represented as not seriously worried about the extortion plot.

The notes were written in a clear hand by an apparently fairly well educated person, police said.

Several members of the Hanna family have large estates around Thomasville.

Hanna's father was the first of the family to buy an estate here. He was Dr. H. Melville Hanna. He purchased the plantation which consists of more than 5,000 acres and maintained a rich home. His brother, Mark Hanna, later established a winter home in the city proper and entertained many political leaders there during the eventful winter before William McKinley was elected president. It was commonly talked that it was in the Mark Hanna home here that the plans for the spectacular presidential campaign of 1896 were laid.

Other Winter Residents.

Located around the Melrose plantation are the estates of the younger Hanna's sisters, Mrs. Gertrude Hanna Haskell and Mrs. Perry W. Harver, Charles M. Chubb, of New York, son of the late Mrs. J. Wymann Jones, sister of Mark Hanna, also has an estate in the Thomasville community.

The Hanna properties are extensive and picturesque examples of modern plantation life. In some instances they are almost separate communities in themselves, with schools, churches and places of worship, and especially for the servants and tenant farmers who work the land. Howard M. Hanna a few years ago built a $400,000 talking picture house for his place. It's called the "Showboat" and is modeled after the old showboats that plied the southern rivers.

Howard M. Hanna, who with his family spent several months each year at this winter resort, is chairman of the board of the M. A. Hanna Company of Cleveland and a director of the Union Trust Company of Cleveland, the National Biscuit Company, the Products Steamship Company and the Eastern Coal Dock Company.

New Rayon Source

Dr. Charles H. Herty, who told the Rotary Club Tuesday that Georgia slash pine will provide a pulp suitable for manufacturing rayon.

RAYON FROM PINE VISIONED BY HERTZ

States for newsprint pulp and $68,000,000 additional for newsprint.

"There is no reason why the bulk of this should not come to Georgia," he said.

The chemist pointed out that in the most recent months of this investigation he has learned that newspaper manufacturers can turn out their product in Georgia just as easy from slash pine as they do in Nova Scotia from spruce and can do it with the same machinery they now are using.

"Georgia slash pine newsprint can be made without the manufacturer adding one dollar's worth of new machinery," he said. "All he has to do is to move his plant to this state and get to work. Slash pine grows far faster than spruce and it is much better for pulp."

Dr. Herty strongly urged the executives of Chancellorsville, Inc., the new federal farm substance project being launched in Putnam and Jasper counties, to make the growing of slash pine one of the major crops of the 25,000-acre development.

"In pine, the farmer would have a ready cash crop," he said. "For slightly more than $1,500,000, a paper manufacturing plant could be built near by and the farmer could sell his pine crop for cash at any day of the year."

Mr. Herty was introduced by Clark Howell, editor of The Constitution. Herbert Porter, general manager of the Georgian, and John Paschall, managing editor of the Journal, also were among his hearers.

The Rotary club honored one of its charter members, Victor Kreighbaum, well-known business executive, by celebrating his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. He was presented a beautiful basket of flowers and his long life and notable civic work were lauded in a talk by Rabbi David Marx.

In addition to the newspaper executives, the club had 19 Atlanta non-members and 13 out-of-town Rotarians at its meeting Tuesday which was held at the Capital City Club.

Roosevelt En Route to Florida For 10 Days' Fishing Vacation

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—President Roosevelt traveled southward tonight eager for a fishing vacation, after one of the most eventful days of his year in the White House.

In a series of rapid moves the president cleared up a mass of pending governmental problems. Some of the things he did:

Signed the naval construction bill and proposed a further reduction in navy armament at the 1935 world naval conference.

Vetoed the independent offices appropriation bill, with its increased pay allowances for veterans and government workers.

Discussed the railroad wage dispute with labor executives who promised early efforts to reach a settlement.

Arranged for the return of the air mail to private concerns.

Went, but smiling, Mr. Roosevelt heaved a sigh as he sat down in his private car and started southward for a fishing vacation, after one of the most eventful days of his year in the White House.

No one in official or political life will be with the president in his week at sea, and he is counting upon a real rest.

Before leaving the White House, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the party leader, assured him that congress had plenty to do in the 10 days of his absence and outlined a program satisfactory to Mr. Roosevelt.

Despite the crowded last hours at the White House, the president was able to stay away for a few minutes to visit his youngest son, John, who is in the naval hospital after an operation for appendicitis.

John assured his father he had the doctor's permission to leave next week, and the president left the hospital smiling.

Marvin H. McIntyre, a secretary, rode with the president and will proceed to Miami to establish a contact base with the Nourmahal.

A powerful radio on the yacht will permit the president to keep contact with land and sea. The U. S. S. Etila, will be trailing him.

ABOARD YACHT NOURMAHAL

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—All is in readiness aboard the palatial yacht Nourmahal, moored in the St. Johns river here, for President Roosevelt's vacation jaunt in southern seas.

Aboard are several old "cronies" with whom the president likes to try his hand for fish in the gulf stream. Shortly after the president transfers from his special train to the Nourmahal, the trim boat will start its way down the river to the seas.

The friends with whom the president will make his fishing voyage are George St. George, Frederick J. Kernehan and Kermit Roosevelt, of New York; Dr. Leslie Heiter, Mobile, Ala., and Vincent Astor, the most.

JEWELRY THIEVES SOUGHT BY POLICE

Few Clues Found; Claude Bennett Places Total Loss at $8,000.

With scant clues on which to work, city detectives Tuesday were investigating the daring robbery of the Claude S. Bennett Jewelry Company store on Peachtree street, early Tuesday morning by three heavily-armed bandits who escaped in two fast automobiles.

The loot consisting of rings and watches, which was snatched by robbers who broke the windows of the jewelry store, was valued at approximately $8,000 by Mr. Bennett Tuesday morning after a thorough check-up had not been completed.

Police said the robbery was one of the most daring in the city in some time. It occurred in a brilliantly lighted section on Peachtree across the street from the Henry Grady hotel and police said at least four persons witnessed the actions of the three men

10-Year-Old Boy, Alone, Makes 4,000 Mile Trip

MIAMI, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Clutching a box containing a highly-prized pair of roller skates, 10-year-old Marcel Fourmignault walked down the gang-plank of a steamer here today to complete a 4,000-mile trip he made alone from Le Havre, France, to come to his father and mother, after a four-year separation.

who smashed the windows, scooped up the jewelry and escaped, all in less than two minutes, while the police were changing watches. The A.D.T. system alarm rang at 12:03 o'clock Tuesday morning, it was said.

A cab starter, W. C. DeFoor, stationed across the street from the store, heard the glass break and saw the robbery but it was done so quickly he was unable to move, he said. Two persons in an automobile were passing at the time but one of the bandits prevented them stopping by waving his gun.

Two men giving the names of J. O. Randall and L. E. Cooley, of Birmingham, were placed under bonds of $1,000 by a police recorder, to be held for the grand jury on charges of burglarizing the Southland Loan and Investment Company, at 61 Poplar street. Tools in their possession fitted marks found at the investment company, detectives said. Both men denied the charge.

PHILCO CONVENTION TO BE HELD ON SHIP

The annual May convention for Philco distributors will be held aboard the new turbo-electric liner, Queen of Bermuda, leaving New York on May 15 and bound for Bermuda and Nassau, according to an announcement just received by J. C. Brown, of the Brown Distributing Company, local Philco distributor. Mr. Brown and A. P. Miegel, of the distributing firm, are planning to attend. Over 400 distributors and salesmen from every part of the country will attend.

"It has been a practice nearly every year," Mr. Brown explained, "for the Philco Company to conduct its annual convention aboard ship in order to provide its distributors with relaxation as well as with information as to its advertising and sales plans for the new season. The announcement we have just received regarding this year's cruise indicates it will be the outstanding cruise in Philco's history."

The Philco cruise ship will leave pier 35, New York, at noon Tuesday, May 15. Wednesday will be spent at sea, allowing Thursday at Bermuda. Friday will give the distributors another day at sea with Saturday spent at Nassau. On Sunday the Queen of Bermuda will point her prow

BAPTISTS TO OBSERVE HOSPITAL DAY MAY 6

Sunday, May 6, will be observed as hospital day in the Baptist Sunday schools of Georgia, according to announcement by W. D. Barker, superintendent of the Georgia Baptist hospital. A goal of $7,500 has been set for the day and it is confidently believed that the amount will be raised by the more than 2,000 Baptist Sunday schools of the state.

All of the money given on hospital day will be used for the charity work of the Georgia Baptist hospital. During 1933 the hospital's charity work amounted to $37,945.37. Of this amount $22,795.85 was devoted to patients outside of Atlanta and $15,149.52 to patients from Atlanta.

This is the only appeal the hospital makes to its constituency for its charity work during the year and the response is always generous.

homeward, arriving back in New York about 9 a. m. Tuesday.

All forms of deck sports and entertainment will be provided for the amusement of those aboard, as well as sightseeing excursions at Bermuda and Nassau. The Queen of Bermuda, because of her great size, 580 feet long and 77 feet wide, is said to assure the utmost in steadiness and comfort. Also, because of its great auditorium with sound equipment and its many halls of various sizes, it makes an ideal vessel for convention purposes.

EXPERTS IN BEAUTY HEARD IN CONVENTION

"Brush-up" courses in methods of beauty culture and the latest styles in the beauty profession were features in Tuesday's second-day session of the third annual beauty show at the Biltmore hotel.

Selling and advertising and other business administration also came in for discussion. Practical hair styles are taking up most of the consideration of the delegates.

A stage program, a daily feature, was given at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Tuesday night's session was featured by an address by Dr. J. C. Unk, noted plastic surgeon of Chicago. A dinner-dance was given Tuesday night.

There will be a farewell dance tonight, and a golf tournament will be staged on the Robby Jones course. The Southeastern Hairdressers' Association will be formed today.

These are among the notables taking part in the program: Condos, foremost creator of hair styles; Paul Rilling, of Chicago, facial make-up; E. Vernon, of Rochester, N. Y., finger waving; Mrs. Alice Ryan, of Kansas City, lash coloring; Norman Hillier, New York city, permanent waving; Philip Gillette, New York city, finger waving; Dr. J. C. Unk, Chicago, noted plastic surgeon; Charles J. Ku-

$300 SCHOLARSHIP OFFERED BY CLUB TO SOUTHERN MAN

The Harvard Business School Club of Atlanta announced Tuesday that it is offering a $300 scholarship for a student from the south who desires to attend the Harvard graduate school of business administration in September, 1934. Only college graduates are eligible to apply, and the award will be made on the basis of scholastic record, the necessity of the applicant for scholarship aid and recommendations as to his general qualifications.

Total expenses for the average man attending the Harvard business school are around $1,200 a year. In addition to the scholarship which is being offered by the local club, a student in good scholastic standing at mid-year can borrow $300 from the student loan fund operated by the school, and in the second year may borrow up to $600 from this fund. W. S. Woods, of the Trust Company of Georgia is president of the club, and Lyle E. Campbell, of Emory University, is secretary. Mr. Woods stated that the club had voted the scholarship to encourage the interest of southern students in pursuing advanced studies in business.

Further information concerning the scholarship may be secured from the secretary of the club.

Miss Mary Jane Parker, of Chicago, and the staff of the Modern Beauty Shop magazine, J. M. Kline, of Savannah, is manager of the show which is sponsored by the Atlanta Hairdressers' Association.

Police Force Epileptics Probed by LaGuardia

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—The sweeping inquiries into departments of New York city's government took a bizarre turn today with the announcement by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia that he was investigating the presence of epileptics on the police force.

Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan, asked about the mayor's statement, said the survey was ordered after seeing a Brooklyn patrolman seized with an attack of epilepsy.

A preliminary investigation, the police commissioner said, disclosed 15 patrolmen and one sergeant suffering with the malady. Eight of the patrolmen will probably be retired, he added, and the sergeant and seven others have been placed on sick leave and inside work.

COMMITTEE OPENS BIDS FOR CITY AUDITING JOB

Bids for auditing books of the city of Atlanta for 1933-1934 were opened Tuesday morning by a subcommittee of the finance committee and will be considered by the finance committee at a meeting to be held at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

There were 18 bids ranging from $8,850 for the lowest to $17,750 for the highest.

Lowest bidders were: James H. Kinsey & Co., $8,850; Audit Company of the South, $9,000; offered by Charles J. Metz, and William H. James & Associates, $9,550.

NRA IS HERE TO STAY, ICE DELEGATE SAYS

The new deal is a beneficent revolution, and the NRA, its chief proponent, is likely to be permanent, a condition that businessmen might as well realize, Ralph J. Hancock, of Marietta, told delegates to the convention of the Georgia Ice Manufacturers' Association at the Piedmont hotel Tuesday.

"It will be virtually impossible ever to return to the old economic order," Mr. Hancock added. He predicted that the temporary injustices of the recovery act would be remedied.

W. F. Robertson, of Savannah, president, and Wilshire Riley, secretary-treasurer, made their reports. Mayor Key's welcome was responded to by E. H. Diemmer, of Brunswick. Technical talks were made by H. W. Caldwell and Roy Gore, of Atlanta, and Leslie C. Smith, of Chicago.

A series of technical talks will feature the final session today. S. E. Hirsch, R. H. Hemphill Jr., E. L. Gunn Jr., Ed Hitt and H. R. Creamer will speak. Election and installation of new officers will bring the convention to a close.

A luncheon was given Tuesday, followed by a theater party for the visiting ladies, and the annual banquet and dance Tuesday night.

ARMS ARE SEIZED BY FRENCH POLICE

Government Acts To Halt Preparations for New Riots.

PARIS, March 27.—(AP)—A half-dozen swift and secret police raids, motivated by rumors that political groups were arming against the government, netted today 100 rifles, pistols, swords, bayonets and a large supply of ammunition.

The prompt government action followed reports that political extremists were collecting arms in workers' districts in preparation for new riots. At least two persons were arrested in the first raids. One of them claimed he was a collector of old weapons, and the other insisted he dealt in second-hand arms.

Without warning—save that government leaders have urged measures against collecting weapons and for supervising the use and purchase of guns—the police swooped down upon extremists' rendezvous in the city and suburbs.

In one apartment in Saint Ouen, a working class suburb where many radicals live, 40 guns were reported to have been found under beds and behind cupboards.

Thirty automatic pistols, bayonets, swords, and rifles were confiscated in another place and as the raiders methodically went about their search for evidence that extremists of the right and left political camps were preparing for another "civil war," as their respective news organs charged.

Most of the arms were found in private apartments.

Meanwhile, customs officials kept a close watch of the French frontiers to prevent arms smuggling. One Belgian workman, arrested yesterday at Roubaix on charges of smuggling weapons into this country, remained in custody.

Police regarded as a gesture of political violence the bombing of a Masonic temple in Cannes, France, in the United States and Great Britain—has been accused by royalists with being involved in the $400,000,000 Stavisky pawnshop swindle.

The council of state studied a governmental decree providing for the limiting and distribution of guns. Headquarters of extremists, both right and left, were reported searched today.

TRAMMELL TO OPEN ELECTION CAMPAIGN

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Senator Trammell, of Florida, left today for his home in Lakeland to open his campaign headquarters preparatory to making a speaking swing through the state.

The senator said he understood five or six candidates would oppose him in the democratic primary June 5, for the nomination to the senate seat.

THE CONSTITUTION GIVES A. J. KAISER POST OF SECRETARY

At the monthly meeting of the board of directors of The Constitution Publishing Company Tuesday A. J. Kaiser, long connected with the business department of The Constitution, was made secretary of the company to succeed the late Edward Stow.

Mr. Kaiser is a native of Minnesota, having attended the Waseca county schools of that state, later taking a business course at the University of Southern Minnesota at Austin. For two years Mr. Kaiser was bookkeeper and stenographer for the McCullough Printing Company, of Austin, later becoming connected with the general offices of George A. Hormel & Company, meat packers, of Austin. He was transferred by that firm as office manager of its Atlanta branch in 1919, which position he held for four years.

Ten years ago Mr. Kaiser became connected with The Constitution as bookkeeper. He was made cashier of the company in 1928, and now becomes secretary of the company.

He is well known in Atlanta, where he has resided for the past 15 years.

Cool Snap, Followed By Warm Day, Seen

A cool snap early today will be followed by rising temperature, the weather bureau forecast Tuesday. The prospects are good for fair weather today and Thursday.

Today's temperature range will be between 36 and 60 degrees. Cold weather in the upper valley and lake regions will bring only a touch of winter to Atlanta.

Tuesday's range of temperature was 48 to 62 degrees, with cloudy condition giving way to sunshine.

The general forecast was for freezing weather as far south as Mississippi on the west and possibly to Richmond on the east today. Chicago had seven inches of snow Tuesday morning and colder weather was reported in the southwest.

Narcotic Defendants Deny Smuggling Plot

Unequivocal denial of knowledge that a plot existed for smuggling narcotics into the federal penitentiary here, made in United States district court Tuesday by three of the accused conspirators.

John W. Smith, former civilian foreman of electricians at the prison, admitted smuggling letters for Robert G. Gibson, a convict and one of the defendants. However, he emphasized there was no conspiracy about it and he was not aware that any of the mail contained illegal drugs.

He confessed the "tips" he received from friends of the prisoners "on the outside" amounted to about $45.

Similar testimony was given by Mrs. Claire Doss and her husband, Dewey C. Doss, of Danvers, Va., who are accused of using their home as a sort of clearing house for the shipment of narcotics from New York to the prison.

Mr. Verner was a member of Central Congressional church, and of the W. D. Lusk lodge of Masons. He is survived by his wife and two children, and two sisters.

SWIFT NEW BOMBERS TO FLY ARMY MAIL

OAKLAND, March 27.—(AP)—Major Clarence A. Tucker, in charge of army air mail operations on the Oakland-Salt Lake City route, announced today he had been advised the army would replace planes now in the air mail service with a fleet of new Martin bombers.

"They are ideal ships to use in the air mail service," he said.

The bombers are capable of a top speed of 215 miles per hour, with a cruising speed of 175 miles per hour.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Mussolini's Plan.

The duce of fascism has just announced a plan for the economic and cultural regeneration of Italy that will run 60 years, in other words, 12 five-year plans wrapped in one. Among other things he said at the conclusion of his speech, "I am not a prophet or a child shall be without a comfortable home in Italy."

It would have been easier to say every man, woman and child will have a comfortable home in five years or in 10 years, and a demagogue would have said this. But the duce has the courage to face the reality and he makes no impossible promises. He predicted that the next century would be the century of fascism, which will be if he is no more. For if a war intervenes, fascism will be wiped out of existence, not only in Italy, but everywhere else. A war will make the coming century the century of socialism and not of fascism. Fascism will not be able to keep standing in any country which undergoes defeat in an eventual war. Nor will it endure in a country which is not so successful in its foreign policy as the fascist state. It is an eventuality that is not a length of time. Men will revolt. With the present state of perfection in armaments, that being so, the world is bound to bring.

Among the things Mussolini said was a reference to constructive fascism and destructive fascism. The difference was obviously to Germany and is therefore of the highest significance. It shows that relations between Germany and Italy have not yet cooled considerably of late. This is further emphasized by the strong words the duce employed about Austria. He declared that Italy will support Austria to guarantee the independence of Austria. This was a direct slap at the Nazis of Germany. But there was also a warning to France. Mussolini came back to his old theme, namely, that Italy needs territory to expand, not in Europe, but in Africa and Asia and he said that he hoped the other powers would not stand in Italy's way.

From this it would seem to appear that Mussolini is willing to come to an understanding with France, and that in fact he prefers an alliance with France rather than with Germany. What he is really after is a division of spheres of influence with France in North Africa. Mussolini has nothing to expect from Germany. If the Italians are ever to have more territory, it must be given by France or it must be obtained by a peaceful arrangement with France. Mussolini is not willing France. He is simply warning her that he has not abandoned his old ambitions. Whether France will heed the warning remains to be seen. But if France isn't conciliatory, Mussolini may just as easily switch his support again to Germany, and that is the thing France does not like to see.

Health Talks

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY

HOW FAR AWAY IS FAR ENOUGH?

Correspondence from clippings from metropolitan newspapers in which an editorial writer comments on the health commissioner's difficult situation about avoiding "fat" is not far away from persons who have colds. Easier said than done. His recommendation to take walks regularly for exercise is excellent, but the time approaches when we may expect some pretty bad weather, when exposure might help give colds to some people not hardened to wet and wind.

Very true, I find encouragement, however, in the health commissioner's bulletin or whatever it was that aroused the editorial concern about the weather. The health commissioner courageously inserted the word "fat" in the almanac. He stated that it is wise to keep far from persons who have a communicable disease. At this rate, in another 10 years, I dare say, some such creature of politics will be recommending that we keep away from persons who have a communicable disease. It is necessary to keep from the scoundrel who purports to have what our eminent trick health authorities call "cold."

Then it will require only a few years more to break it gently to the public that the danger is chiefly with the nose of the scoundrel, with a nasal spray, which is less than five feet.

It is, as the editorial writer observed, easier said than done. Only in offices and subways and on buses and trains, at counters, at ticket windows and tellers' grilles, at soda fountains and across restaurant counters, in the movies, in school, church, in the home. The only influence of bad weather on the occurrence of communicable disease is that it tends to increase the danger of such infection, since it encourages people to huddle together. Especially people who are intimidated by the obsession of "exposure" in some mysterious way rob one of "resistance."

This plausible but meaningless theory persists in spite of the fact that no one who has been exposed to a communicable disease in a crowded place in advance of such a state as "resistance" in any specific case. It is perhaps confused in the slovenly mind with immunity, which is not a vague group of ailments such as the politicians in medicine and health would have their imaginary "resistance" cover. Immunity to diphtheria, for instance, has nothing to do with immunity to scarlet fever or pneumonia or infantile paralysis. If you can conceive some mysterious state or influence which protects against all of these respiratory infections—then you should keep on believing in "the common cold" and expect to die of it.

For it is of no concern to you which "weak spot" your "cold" happens to "settle in."

THREE WANDERERS DIE IN MEMPHIS HOSPITAL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—(AP) Far from homes and loved ones three wanderers died in the city hospital here today.

Frank Watson, 48, who gave Centerville, Texas, as his last address, died at 4:15 p. m. A sawmill engineer by trade, he was last employed in the cotton field near Leno, Ark.

M. D. W. Watson, formerly of Valley, Miss., died at 5 a. m. Ernest Ward, 63, a native of Leeds, England, who gave Oakland, Cal., as his last address, died a few minutes later.

All were registered at the transient bureau. Ward and Watson died of pneumonia. Wade's death was attributed to tuberculosis.

"TVA IN EVERY TOWN" URGED IN TENNESSEE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 27.—(AP) Representative E. H. Crump, leader of the Shelby county democratic organization, has called upon Governor Hill McAlister to advocate "the TVA wire in every town, city and farmhouse throughout the state."

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON.

SUNRAYS WASHINGTON, March 27.—The law of nature appears to have gone democratic. Business looks good on the inside and out, for no apparent reason, except that spring is here. Improvement is 10 to 20 per cent better than normal for this season. Employment and pay rolls are particularly encouraging.

These deductions stick out on the economic box score for this month. The figures which do not lie, and which are not figured by hearsay, indicate we are nearly back to the average business level for 1931 and still going up.

The progress has been made in the face of business skittishness about some current phases of the new deal, and a public psychology which is not as encouraging as it might be.

SCORE The condition of things may be measured from the following score sheet. Each figure has had the seasonal trend removed from it so it represents the true percentage relationship to normal at the intervals stated (normal being 1923-25.)

Month	Industrial Production	Employment	Pay	Prod. Index	Emp. Index	Pay Index	Prod. Value	Emp. Value	Pay Value

February	81	74.7	59.2	64	70	45	42	47	47
March (Est.)	84	76	61	66	72	51	45	47	47

(The estimates for March were obtained from purely private and unofficial sources.)

TOO GOOD? The employment and pay-roll figures were so good that the labor department experts were suspicious of them at first. They sent the figures back for re-checking, holding up publication for several days.

The re-check showed that the good old law of nature had wrought accomplishments beyond their expectations.

Nothing happened during February and March which can explain a growth of employment and pay rolls out of proportion to the growth of production.

The NRA codes began to go into effect last October. From then until February there was a steady shrinkage in both employment and pay rolls. So the codes could not have had much to do with it.

The only plausible explanation is that manufacturers could not increase their production beyond a certain point without also increasing employment and pay rolls. When the time came to step up spring production, they had to enlarge their pay rolls.

DETAILS That is shown by the fact that the pay roll increases came in industries which were increasing production. Automobile pay rolls went up 40 per cent in February, iron and steel, 10 per cent; rubber, 13 per cent, and tobacco manufacturers, 14; textiles, 20 per cent; leather, 20 per cent; machinery, 10 per cent.

The automobile, steel and rubber improvements can be traced to one thing. Automobile production started late and therefore was carried on at an accelerated rate. (Chevrolet and Plymouth had virtually no production in January.)

Textiles and leather reflect increased production of Easter finery. While these bellwether industries led the way, the improvement was general. Out of 89 manufacturing industries, 77 increased employment in February and 79 increased their pay-roll outlay.

As it is customary for all administrations to claim credit for acts of nature, the new dealers will probably get credit for this.

PUBLIC WORKS The promised flood of public works money still looks like a raindrop.

Secretary Ickes put out $47,000,000 during February, which is about half of the contracts awarded for December.

But here again nature has stepped in. There has been virtually no private building for two years. Yet in February contracts awarded for private building totaled $50,000,000, which is $3,000,000 more than Mr. Ickes spent.

That brought the total this February to nearly twice what it was last February ($53,000,000), which does not mean much because we were scraping bottom then.

The March improvement estimate is based on the fact that during the first two weeks of the month the total outlay for public and private building was $92,000,000, which is nearly as much as for the entire month of February.

All in all it certainly indicates that the spring urge to build is working better than the public works program.

VERACITY There can be no serious question about the honesty of these figures. They may not be perfect, but they are nearer perfection than any you can get. At least all recognized economists accept them as such.

They come from too many sources to reflect collusion. For instance, the federal reserve board gets the industrial production figures from a score of sources, including the American Iron and Steel Institute, the Tanners' Council, the census bureau (textiles and autos), treasury (tobacco manufacturing withdrawals), the bureau of mines, the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, American Paper and Pulp Associations, et al.

No one ever accused the federal reserve board of doctoring any figures.

SUSPICIONS There have been suspicions that the labor department figures on employment and pay rolls were inaccurate in years past. For that reason the federal reserve and other self-respecting figures collected their own statistics on those two items. But lately the labor department system has been revised. The federal reserve has shown such faith in them that it is no longer collecting its own.

The railroad figures come from the American Railway Association; building from F. W. Dodge Corporation; department store sales from federal reserve, and foreign trade from the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. The best proof that they are honest is that they rarely show what the new dealers would like to show.

He Encourages the Growing of Fodder If He Makes Machines To Harvest It

By Robert Quillen

History tells us that France lost the Franco-Prussian war and paid dearly to rid her soil of enemy troops.

But it doesn't tell us that France furnished the money used by Krupp to get the guns that killed French soldiers.

There are other things, equally strange, that war's historians never mention.

When Japan and Russia fought, England was an ally of Japan. Yet England provided the guns used by Russia to kill Japanese.

That was odd, you will agree, but greater oddities occurred during the World War.

Men were dying by the million to save their fatherland—struggling and suffering to the last agonized gasp to overcome the enemy.

Yet England was furnishing Germany, through Sweden, the nickel and other materials needed to kill English soldiers.

France was furnishing Germany, through Switzerland, the copper and rubber and other things needed in making war materials to kill French soldiers.

And Germany, through Switzerland, was furnishing France with magnets and iron used in killing German soldiers.

In one region captured by Germany were mines and blast furnaces that supplied three-fourths of the steel used to carry on the war.

A French army was close to that region. It might have bombed the furnaces and wrecked the mines, but it didn't.

And the Germans made no effort to bomb the region that provided steel for the French war machine.

Consider one more oddity. Powerful French newspapers denounce Hitler and kindle wrath against him. Yet the owners of these newspapers financed his rise to power.

Why? Because these newspaper owners also own munitions plants and Hitler is a good tool for the making of another war.

That tells the story. A few gentlemen, seldom mentioned in print, control the world's hundreds of munitions plants. They also control banks and make or break politicians.

And these gentlemen care little who wins a war. Their concern is to get the war started, and prolong it, for each organized butchery adds millions to their vast fortunes.

COMMENT

Theory of Taxation According to Price Runs Counter to NRA and AAA—Is Manace to Farmers.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A new principle of taxation which, if adopted, would demoralize the laws of supply and demand and tend to break down the NRA, as well as the AAA, is under consideration by the house ways and means committee and the senate finance committee.

Briefly, it seeks to equalize competition by using the internal revenue laws of the United States to let the inefficient grow stronger at the expense of the efficient. It would permit those who sell goods at a lower price than competitors to enjoy a lower rate of taxation.

It is originated with the manufacturers of 10-cent cigars who are finding the increased costs brought about by NRA and the processing taxes a bit too high for them, something they did not anticipate when they started a vigorous price war in June, 1932—and now they are pleading with the government to let them have a lower rate of tax by the simple device of classifying cigars according to selling prices. These 10-cent cigars insist they would pass on some of the reduction to the consumer, though of course there is no way the government can guarantee such a result.

Old Deal Now Alive.

The argument for the reduction is that the people would buy more 10-cent cigars and hence the internal revenue would increase. Members of the house ways and means committee asked in a recent hearing why, if this were true, it would not be better to have a lower rate of tax on all classes of cigars, since this would mean a lower price to the consumer. The defenders of the new principle argued that this was a satisfactory answer to that question.

The facts are, of course, that despite protestations to the contrary from some of the manufacturers, there is a decided difference in quality between the 10-cent and the 15-cent cigars. Members of congress from tobacco producing states indicated as much in their line of questioning when this subject was up before the committee in January.

Indeed, it seemed at that time that the subject had been disposed of by the house committee, but in some mysterious way it has been revived at the request of the treasury department, and this week will see some sensational testimony.

Discovery of Diet for Germicides Is Reported to Chemical Society

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE.
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Discovery at the Mayo clinic of a diet which the human body uses to manufacture its own germ-killing chemicals was reported to the American Chemical Society today by A. E. Osterberg, M. D.

These "home-made" germicides act the same as healing drugs out of an apothecary's bottle, but are more effective because they originate deep within the body, in places where it is either difficult or impossible to reach with medicine.

These particular diet germicides limit their healing action so far as now known to one tract of the body. They begin work in the system which starts with the kidneys and extends down through the bladder. This area is one of the troublesome seats of infection.

The human germicides which work there are known chemically as ketones. They are acids, all of them produced normally from the fat in food during digestion. These acids gather in the "sac" of the kidneys.

The Mayo discovery is a balanced diet which will produce them in large quantities for patients with serious diseases of the numerous ill due to infection in this body tract. The diet is a balance between fat, protein and sugar. Its proportion is 10 per cent of fat, 25 of protein and 15 of sugar. A variety of common foods can be selected for menus on this diet. The fat may come from butter, cream, and oil. The protein part of a meal is so low that almost no meat should be eaten, nor leguminous vegetables like peas. The carbohydrate fraction is still lower, and means cutting out all starchy foods. This results in an overproduction of the ketonic substances, known as acetone, diacetic acid and beta-oxybutyric acid.

The last named, Dr. Osterberg said, is the germicide which kills the bacteria. The Mayo clinic has found also a simple test which shows when a patient's diet has reached the right balance for doing his own internal disinfection. As the ketones are excreted from the body they reveal their germ-killing concentration by turning the color of a special kind of paper from yellow to red.

Memorial hospital in New York city has tried out the new heavy water on cancer, and found that it apparently has not the least curative effect. High hopes had been held that the double-weight hydrogen in heavy water might slow down cancer growth.

The report of the cancer trials was delivered to a heavy water symposium by Dr. Harold C. Urey, of Columbia University. He said also that the Memorial hospital physicians found heavy water non-poisonous to growth of where seedlings. Earlier experiments of other scientists had indicated that plants and animals do not live in this water.

Dr. Urey suggested that chemical impurities in the heavy water may explain some of its previously reported lethal effects. There is so little heavy water available that it has been difficult to clean out the impurities and still have enough of the water left for experiment.

Discovery of the reason why the copper eaten in sea food is harmless to human beings was reported by E. Jack Coulson, of the United States Bureau of Fisheries, and Dr. E. Remington, of the Medical College of South Carolina. The sea dwellers, such as oysters, convert the ocean copper into "copper bound" by state water. The digestive organs this sea copper won't crack open so that the body can absorb it, but mostly passes out as waste. Ordinary copper is assimilated and poisonous.

The secret of Azochloramid, a new antiseptic, was reported by E. C. Schenkel and H. C. Marks, of Belleville, N. J. Azochloramid is a new form of chlorine, whose discovery was reported first three months ago to the American Society of Bacteriologists at Philadelphia.

They were told that it was the most perfect antiseptic ever found in one all-important respect. It kills bacteria yet is entirely harmless to human tissues. Further discovery of the reason why it was reported today. The blood flowing through the tissues neutralizes the Azochloramid so that it is harmless to man. But the bacteria, which have no blood, are killed.

Urban League Bulletin

The United States department of labor has recently published a monograph on the history of the industrial change among women. The title of the pamphlet, "Women at Work," is a resume of the employment of women for the past 100 years. From the section devoted to the negro woman worker, we quote the following:

"While women workers in general have been restricted by lack of opportunities for employment, by long hours, low wages, and harmful working conditions, there are groups—the latest comes into industry—upon whom these hardships have fallen with doubled severity. As the members of a new and inexperienced race arrive at the doors of industry the jobs that open up to them ordinarily are those vacated by an earlier stratum of workers who move on to more highly paid occupations. Negro women constitute such a new and inexperienced group among women workers.

"Added to the fact that they came late into the job market, they have borne the handicap of race discrimination. Slavery placed a stigma on their capabilities and they were considered unfit for factory or skilled work. White men and women, partly because of this and partly because they resented the competition of cheap negro labor, were unwilling to be engaged on the same work processes with them. To the negro woman has fallen the more menial, the lower paid, the heavier and more hazardous jobs. Her story has been one of meeting, enduring and in part overcoming these difficulties.

"Previously to the Civil War, few negroes were employed in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits. As slaves in the south, where more than nine-tenths of the negro population of the United States was to be found, they had worked on plantations—raising cotton, tobacco, sugar, rice and hemp; or had done the household service of maids, cooks, washer-women, and seamstresses. Some negroes had gained industrial experience as slave labor in cotton, tobacco and bagging factories, in iron furnaces and charcoal plants, but their numbers were small, as the industrial development of the south was almost negligible at that time.

"With the close of the Civil War and the freeing of the slaves, the majority settled down as farmers or share-croppers. Others turned to domestic and personal service. Both these types of work they had done formerly as slaves.

"White men and women are entering industry in increasing numbers, and because of their priority and because of race consciousness, factory opportunities were restricted to the whites. Thus, manufacturing was closed to negro women, whose employment was almost entirely limited to farm work and domestic and personal service—a condition that continued down through the years. As late as 1910, 95 per cent of all negro women workers were in these occupations. Up to the time of the World War the only manufacturing industry to employ any large number of negro women was the making of cigars and cigarettes.

"With the shortage of labor created by the World War, the opportunity came for negro women to join the growing army of American women in industry. They entered in large numbers those occupations that white women were leaving as new opportunities opened. In other cases, negro women filled the places of men who had gone to the front. The greatest gains were made in textile and clothing factories, the food industries, tobacco factories, and wood-products manufacture. The war industries, too, recruited negro women in the making of shells, gas masks, and parts of airplanes. The census of 1920, taken immediately after the war period, showed that negro women in the manufacturing and mechanical industries had increased by over one-half. In the professions (as teachers) in office work, and as salesgirls, negro women have also found new work opportunities during the war.

"With the return of men from the front and the end of the labor shortage many of these gains were lost. According to the census of 1930, however, negro women have increased their war gains in trade, professional service and clerical occupations. While small numerically, these large proportional increases represent real achievement in the occupational progress of negro women. That they are finding a place in the growing laundry business is shown by the fact that about 30 per cent of the women laundry operatives are negroes.

"The wages of negro women workers have been on even lower levels than those of white women. A study of negro women in 15 states, published by the women's bureau in 1929, shows that in only 2 of 11 states was the median of the week's earnings—that is, one-half of the women receiving more and one-half receiving less—as high as $8. In 4 of these states the median of the earnings was below the pitifully small sum of $6.

"Scattered wage figures of a more recent date are found in women's bureau studies of negro women in slaughtering and meat packing and in the cigar and cigarette industries. In the first, the wages of negro women compared favorably with those of white women, but in the second the median earnings of negro women, most of whom stripped the leaf, were $10.10 in cigars and $8 in cigarettes. For white women, most of whom were makers and packers, the corresponding medians were $16.30 and $17.05. In the light of the improved working conditions through organization, negro women workers have met with even greater failure than have women workers as a whole. To an even greater extent than all women workers, they are concentrated in the unorganizable and unskilled occupations, and have made very little progress in organizing negro women workers.

"Today almost 2,000,000 negro women are wage earners. Their employment is to general that 39 are at work in every 100 who are as much as 10 years old. This is practically double the percentage of white women. Nine-tenths of the employed negro women are in agriculture or domestic and personal service. The majority of the others are in the manufacturing and mechanical industries. The industrial depression that has devastated the lives of millions of workers has fallen with particular severity on the negro workers. Although not giving figures by sex, a recent study made by the National Urban League has shown that the proportion of negroes is much greater among the unemployed than among the employed. The result of the depression, according to reports from various cities, is that negro waitresses and other domestics are being displaced by white workers. Not only has the negro worker taken the ragged edges of employment in times of prosperity, but in times of depression her unemployment is the most acute.

MOVIE LEADERS MEET TO PERFECT CODE ORGANIZATION

Motion picture distributors and exhibitors of the four southeastern states met here Tuesday and perfected an organization which will administer the code of fair practice for the motion picture industry. Two boards will have charge of the code's operation in Georgia, Tennessee, Florida and Alabama.

The two boards are the clearance and zoning board and the grievance board. Roy LeCraw, insurance man, is serving as impartial chairman and Love B. Harrell is secretary. Alva Maxwell will serve as impartial chairman of the clearance and zoning board while Mr. LeCraw will serve in that capacity on the grievance board. On Mr. Maxwell's board are D. C. Lam, of Rome; Willie Davis, of Atlanta, and Mitchell Wolfson, of Miami. On the LeCraw board are Hubert Lyons, R. K. O. Atlanta; A. C. Bromberg, Nat. M. Williams, of Thomasville, and R. B. Wilby, of Atlanta.

In Georgia's Fields and Streams

By H. A. CARTER

The Carnegie library has a book on their shelves that I envy them. Soon or later a copy of this book will find its way into my own library, because it is most valuable to students of wild life.

There are altogether too few books that give the facts necessary to a proper appreciation of the various adaptations and modifications of the anatomy of fishes. It is a singular thing, but the mention of anatomy is usually enough to scare an otherwise intelligent reader into a fit of intellectual paralysis. This fact is wholly inexplicable. The cure has been found for this condition, and it lies between the beautiful green covers of "A History of Fishes," by J. R. Norman.

Mr. Norman is the assistant keeper, or curator, in the department of zoology of the British museum. His information is authentic, to say the least. One could not rise to such a position without the refinements of research that reveal the truth. It is the labors of such men that make for scientific advancement. In most exceptional cases there exists a scientist who is able to express himself in simple terms, yet prevent the use of daily words from obscuring the accuracy that commonly calls for the most precise technical terminology. Mr. Norman is one of these gifted persons.

Regular readers of this column know that I am not given to exaggeration. On this reputation—which, like all reputations, has a low tensile strength and cannot stand much of a strain—I can say that Mr. Norman's style of writing is beautiful in its simplicity. It is not the studied prose that froths in "literary" efforts, but the careful, simple diction of the research worker setting down facts as he sees them. Indeed, the author states in his preface that he has avoided technicalities as far as possible, and that scientific terms are included only "where their omission would be at the expense of clarity."

I said that the book was in the Carnegie library. It will be as soon as the authorities there can make me give it back.

Frederick A. Stokes Company, of New York, are the publishers. They have done a splendid job on the format of the book, which matches in elegance the beauty of the text and illustrations. Those illustrations, by the way, Lieutenant Colonel W. P. C. Tenslow, deserve mention for their fidelity of detail. Three agencies have produced a masterpiece.

"AN EYE TO THE FUTURE — AN EAR TO THE GROUND"

—this describes General Motors'

policy, a policy by which the public is given what it wants in better cars year after year, and yet is safely protected against ill-timed or dubious experiments

When GM does it you know it's going to click"

YOU'VE probably heard people express their trust in General Motors in just such words as those.

But what they're saying right now is even more emphatic:

"Look at No-Draft Ventilation. Look at Knee-Action Wheels. Look at the way General Motors developed the idea of streamlining and did it in styles that say beauty as well as speed.

"That's sure calling the turns—and General Motors called all three."

The real admirers of General Motors will point to what's back of all this.

They'll tell you that

The three outstanding advancements in modern automobiles—NO-DRAFT VENTILATION, KNEE-ACTION WHEELS, STREAMLINE DESIGN—are each and all General Motors contributions!

And there you begin to see why people have such confidence in anything that General Motors builds. They know they're dealing with a pioneer willing to listen as well as lead.

KATHARINE CORNELL

TURNS BACK ON FILMS

Katharine Cornell, who will be seen at the Erlanger theater Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21, in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "Candida," has never acted for the screen. She is one of the few actresses who prefer the stage to the films, though she has great admiration for many picture artists and directors, nothing has been able to tempt her to quit the theater even temporarily for Hollywood.

Her range is shown by her plays, "Romeo and Juliet," "Candida," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "The Great Hat," "Laurence," "The Age of Innocence," "A Bill of Divorcement," "Little Women" and many other dramas. She never is seen in public except on the stage where she is acting.

Basel Rathbone, who appears as Robert Browning in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and as James Morrell in "Candida," has on the other hand acted in several films with such stars as Norma Shearer, Pola Negri and Constance Bennett. He made his last picture in England, John Galsworthy's "Loyalties."

"The Barretts" will be shown Friday and Saturday.

Atlantans To Spend Easter Holidays In Washington, D. C.

A congenial group leaving on Tuesday by motor for Washington, D. C., to spend the Easter holidays include Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Bradley and a trio of college belles, Misses Tina Bradley, Charlotte Sage and Betty Lee. These well-known Atlantans will stay at the Mayflower hotel, where they will be listed among the interesting visitors in the national capital at this particular season.

Miss Bradley and Miss Lee are members of the senior class at Washington Seminary, and Miss Sage is a member of the junior class at the same school. Miss Lee expects to join her sister, Miss Harriet L. Lee, at Fort George Meade where they will visit relatives for several days. The garrison social life at the Maryland post provides an added attraction for the visiting belles, and hops, teas, dances, and drag-hunts will make the social calendar.

Miss Lee will rejoin Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Miss Bradley and Miss Sage to return to Atlanta by motor. The party will make a leisurely trip southward, and expect to stop at interesting points on their homeward journey.

Mimosa Garden Club Names Committees

The appointment of committees for the entertainment of the Garden Club of Georgia at the annual meeting to be held in Atlanta on April 19 and 20 featured the meeting of the Mimosa Garden Club held Monday at the "Crippled Children's" hospital. The flower committee as named by the club included Mrs. Price Gilbert, chairman; Mrs. Clark Howell Sr., Mrs. Stewart Witham, Mrs. Alfred Newell and Mrs. Blewett Lee. Miss May Haverly was named chairman of the transportation committee, with Mrs. Paul Bernan, Mrs. William Adger Smythe, Mrs. Philip Alton, Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger and Mrs. Joseph D. Rhodes comprising the committee.

Mrs. Ten Eyck Brown, president of the club, and Mrs. James L. Riley, a past president, will represent the Mimosa Club as delegates at the meeting of the Garden Club of Georgia.

Mrs. Blewett Lee and Mrs. Frank Hardeman were announced as new members, who form welcome acquisitions to the membership.

The club members inspected the garden surrounding the Crippled Children's hospital, the care of which forms the major interest of the club. Meetings are held at the hospital in the spring and in the fall to allow the members to become acquainted with the work being done by the club. Tea was served, with Mrs. Newton Craig acting as hostess.

Peachtree Garden Club Met at Mrs. Johnson's

March meeting of the Peachtree Garden Club was held last Monday at the home of Mrs. Edwin F. Johnson, on Peachtree road, with the president, Mrs. Robert L. Cooney in the chair. A report of the meeting of the president's council of the Garden Club of America held in February at Palm Beach, was interestingly related by Mrs. John Grant, who attended the meeting. She spoke of the glass houses made by Girl Scouts in which were planted miniature gardens; of a "Garden of Old Japan," planted by Mrs. E. F. Hutton; and of the beautiful enclosed gardens at Palm Beach.

Mrs. Jesse Draper gave a splendid talk on the New York flower show which was attended daily by 25,000 to 40,000 people. Many new flowers were exhibited, the loveliest being the Peruvian scilla. The Garden Clubs belonging to the Garden of America displayed unusual arrangements of spring flowers.

Mrs. Evans To Speak

Mrs. J. D. Evans will be guest speaker at the meeting of the garden division of the Boulevard Park Women's Club this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. E. L. Reynolds, 708 Park drive, N. E.

Mrs. Evans will take as her subject "Combining Annuals and Perennials and Color Combinations in the Garden." Residents of Boulevard Park who are interested in garden club work are invited.

Mrs. Cobb Honored

Miss Sarah Edmondson entertained at luncheon Tuesday at the Piedmont Driving Club, honoring her sister, Mrs. George Cobb Jr., of LaGrange, who is the guest of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Edmondson.

Invited to meet Mrs. Cobb were Mesdames R. A. Edmondson Jr., LeRoy Harwell, Lewis Hawkins, Robert Organ, John Massengale, George Croft, Wilson Kemp, Misses Mary Frances Gay, Mary McCord, Jane Sharp and Genevieve Edmondson.

Lovely Mother and Little Son

Mrs. Roderick Brittain Lee and her son, Roderick Brittain Lee Jr., who are visiting Mrs. Lee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McDonald, at their home on Myrtle street, will leave early in April for Cleveland, Ohio, where they will join Mr. Lee to establish their future residence.

Miss Helenka Adamowska Finds Atlanta Splendid Field for Children's Plays

By ELIZABETH THOMPSON.

Unlimited possibilities make Atlanta a particularly interesting field for the development of children's plays, because entertainments of this type have not been stressed in this city, according to charming Miss Helenka Adamowska, of New York city, chairman of the Junior League to conduct a play institute instructing members of the league in acting and directing children's play productions and discussing the expansion of this work into Atlanta. She is the guest of Mrs. Murdock Egan at her home on Habersham road, and is being extensively entertained during her visit.

"The Junior League to conduct a play institute seems a particularly good medium for presenting plays to the children," Miss Adamowska observed. "For although the members are not professionals they bring enthusiasm, earnestness, and spontaneity into their work which more than compensates for lack of finesse. Junior Leagues are unusually interested in work with children and have access to organizations, both charitable and otherwise, which enable them to take their productions into hospitals and other institutions for underprivileged children."

Preceding the tea given Tuesday by the Atlanta Junior League at the Piedmont Driving Club in honor of Miss Adamowska, tryouts were given to league members who will have parts in the scene to be presented Saturday morning. A scene from Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" has been selected as typical of dramatic problems in productions for children and rehearsals will be held at 2:30 Wednesday, all day Thursday and Friday, at the Driving Club. The scene, without costuming or scenery, will be presented on Saturday morning when anyone interested in children's plays is invited to attend. A special invitation is extended to P. T. A. officers, school superintendents, and others actively connected with groups of children. The rehearsals and the performance Saturday will be most informal, in the nature of a laboratory experiment, with the audience taking a part in the classes.

Purpose of Institute.

It is hoped that a permanent children's theater will be the result of the institute which is an experiment for instruction. The chief purpose of Miss Adamowska's classes is to stress the sincerity and simplicity, necessary for productions suitable for children. Often, according to this talented expert on the theater, more striking effects may be achieved by simplicity than by the most elaborate settings and costumes. The lack of scenery, costumes, and props will act as a direct challenge to the ability of the actresses. At the present time simplicity is particularly desirable because it will lessen the expense of the productions and assist in solidifying the business organization. Improvement in technique and methods for creating stunning effects will be stressed at the classes.

Accent on the play program should be placed not on the money collected from the gate receipts but on the value of the presentations to the children of the community. Miss Adamowska believes. In order to reach a large number of children it is advisable to contact the various schools and child welfare groups, inviting them to the performances or taking the productions to them for presentation. Although the plays are presented primarily for entertainment, they build a love of beauty in the children and are a splendid influence, exhibiting to them well-planned theatrical productions.

A particularly good balance is maintained by the theater department of the Boston Junior League which gives one elaborate production each year as a means of raising money and presents at least six other performances for settlement houses and other groups of underprivileged children. Miss Adamowska hopes that the Atlanta League at some future date will begin a series of children's entertainments at regular intervals, possibly combining plays for children, marionette shows, and an occasional motion picture, appropriate for children. Thus by making the presentations less elaborate a greater number may be given.

In Nashville, Tenn., where Miss Adamowska recently visited the league a permanent series of entertainments for children will be started at an early date. In Birmingham, numbers of plays are given in which children take all the parts, and often try-outs are held at which are open to any children in the city, while at other times children of members are utilized in the productions. According to Miss Adamowska the use of children in the productions is excellent so long as they are not made to feel self-conscious or to become conceited over their selection for parts.

One hundred and twenty Junior Leagues are successfully working on programs for the entertainment of children, some on more elaborate scales than others. In New York city the presentations are particularly brilliant and more frequent than those staged in the smaller leagues. Unusually interesting is the play program of the Trenton (N. J.) League, which has fitted up a splendid children's theater in a garage, where productions are given each Saturday for the children, making them feel that the theater really belongs to them.

Vitality interested in her work, gifted and experienced, Miss Adamowska, in presenting the theater institute, will inspire Atlantans to more and better work on programs for children's entertainments.

Miss Coile Honored At Birthday Party

Miss Virginia Coile was central figure at a surprise birthday party when her sister, Mrs. C. A. Hogg, entertained on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. J. C. Oliver in Kirkwood. A color motif of yellow and white was reflected in the effective decorations. Mrs. J. M. Akridge Jr. presided at the punch bowl, and games and contests were featured. Prizes consisting of tiny live chickens were presented Miss Ruth Huckaby, Miss Louise Baker and Charles McConnell. Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. E. E. Coile and J. C. Oliver.

Pilot Club Dance

Pilot Club of Atlanta, composed of outstanding business women and having as its objective "community welfare," will give a series of benefit dances to obtain funds for this worthy cause, and also to assist in defraying expenses of delegates to the international convention to be held in Phenix, Ariz., in June. An informal dance will be held at Corowanna lodge, Donnelly avenue, S. W., Friday, March 30, at 9 o'clock. Tickets may be purchased from any member of the Pilot Club.

Mrs. Turner Heads Atlanta League Of Pen Women

Mrs. C. Gainer Turner was elected president of the Atlanta branch of the League of American Pen Women at the March meeting held on Monday evening at the Studio Arts building. Officers elected to serve with Mrs. Turner were Mrs. John Boyd, vice president; Mrs. Yolande Gwin, recording secretary; Mrs. Minnie Hite Moore, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Russell Whitman, treasurer; Miss Helen Knox Spain, program chairman; Miss Yolande Gwin, publicity, and Mrs. Bonita Crowe, auditor.

An art exhibit by Miss Cornelia Cunningham and a program on journalism, featured the meeting, and Mrs. C. Gainer Turner presided over the meeting. The guest speaker was Stewart F. Gelders, of the Atlanta Georgian. He is a gifted writer, a newspaperman of wide experience, and an entertaining speaker, and his talk on "Journalism" was enjoyed by the audience. Guests found pleasure viewing the beautiful pencil sketches and paintings by Cornelia Cunningham, and a unique feature was the charming marionette show at which Miss Cunningham displayed her gift in manipulating marionettes and workmanship. Tea was served by Miss Cunningham and Miss Wolff assisted by Miss Mary Pritchard and Miss Annie Laurie Hill.

On the Air Today

ALBERT SPALDING—The Willhelm arrangement for violin of the "Good Friday Spell" from Wagner's devout opera, "Parsifal," will be the highlight of the joint recital by Albert Spalding, violin and Conrad Thibault, harp, who will feature Lenten music in their program over the Columbia chain and WGST tonight from 7:30 to 8 o'clock. Thibault will offer Faure's "The Palmes" and later he will sing Forster's "Rose in the Bud," a eulogy to spring. Spalding will continue in the same mood with Mendelssohn's "Spring Song." The concert will be climaxed with an elaborate arrangement of Rubinstein's familiar "Melody in F," enlisting the talents of Spalding, Thibault, a mixed chorus and Don Vorhees' orchestra.

YANK—The CBS Dramatic Guild will present a microphone adaptation of Ben Ames Williams' story of New England life, "They Grind Exceeding Small," in a WGST broadcast tonight from 8 to 8:30 o'clock. Williams is a successful writer in the popular magazine field and the dramatic cast, considered a really capable organization, is headed by Ray B. Collins and Stephen Fox.

LATEST—One of Ted Flottie's own compositions, "Lou Anna," and his latest too, will be presented on the WGST program beginning at 9 o'clock tonight by the old west coast maestro himself. The composer-conductor will also play a piano solo of "When Day Is Done" while the singing, acting, master of ceremonies, Dick Powell, will offer "Viva a France" and "You Have Taken My Heart." Arday Macellino and the girls will offer several selections and the orchestra will be heard in several distinctive numbers.

"can breathe now, Mummy!"

Clear up sniffly little noses—prevent many colds altogether with VICKS NOSE DROPS

THE next time you hear a snuffle in your home, mother, don't wait until it grows into a cold. Promptly, apply the new aid in preventing colds... Vicks Nose & Throat Drops.

Just a few drops up each nostril. Quickly, clogged-up stuffiness vanishes. Breathing is easy again. The head is clear.

Vicks Nose Drops are especially designed to aid and gently stimulate the functions which nature has provided—in the nose—to prevent and throw off colds.

Don't confuse Vicks Nose Drops with mere "oil drops." Vicks Drops give you real medication—yet are absolutely safe—for children and adults alike.

You'll find Vicks Nose Drops easy to use—any time, any place. Keep a bottle handy

For a sore, irritated throat, gargle with the new Vicks VapoRub.

SPANISH SONGS ON AIR

BY SENORITA PEREZ

Senorita Carmelita Perez will offer "Cloveites," an all-Spanish number meaning carnations, and "Thoughts" as feature presentations of the "Lady From Spain" program at 9:30 o'clock tonight over WJTL.

The renditions continue as feature of the station's offerings because of the spreading popularity of the young Atlanta artist.

Among other selections will be: "La Golondrina" (The Swallow), a popular and bewitching Mexican presentation; "Maria-La-O" (Maria, My Own), from Cuba, and "Adios" (Good-bye).

$2,826,673 Insurance Taken During 'Independence Week'

Atlanta insurance men placed $2,826,673 worth of life insurance during "financial independence week" just past in the national contest sponsored by life insurance companies throughout the United States. It was announced Tuesday by Hurd J. Crain, president of the local chapter of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

During the week banks, newspapers, radio broadcasting stations and private companies joined in the campaign with the insurance men to teach the value of life insurance as a means of financial independence. Salesmen wrote 871 applications in the six-day period. Walter Powell, widely known insurance man, was general chairman of the week here and planned the numerous features by which the campaign was brought to public attention.

Bruce Barton, the author, prepared a booklet for the insurance men outlining his own experience with insurance.

Mr. Powell, Mr. Crain and John Ashley Jones, also a well known insurance man, made radio talks during the week over WGST and WSB and Dr. C. R. Stauffer, speaking on the Community Chest welfare program over WSB, also made "Financial Independence Week" his theme.

The campaign had the endorsement of President Roosevelt and was begun with a dinner given by the Retail Credit Company at which Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Constitution, was the principal speaker.

By MIGNON.
It is a trick to apply rouge properly. Many women have a difficulty when they try to use a cream rouge because they don't know how to apply it, and if it is the least bit "indelible" it is very difficult to erase once the picture is painted.

Many cream rouges are being made in a lightweight mixture, about the consistency of whipped cream, and are very easy to spread. The only difficulty is that they are being made with more and more lasting color, and it takes a good cold cream bath to change the position of it once it is applied.

There is an art that you should learn if you are going to dabble in any kind of rouge. If your face is thin and your cheeks a bit hollow you should put the color high, as the rouged surface always carries the shadow, and if you put it where there is already shadow, the color will look gaunt. You can make a fit face look thinner by putting the rouge in a small spot far back on the face, almost to the hair line rather than right under the eye.

Once you learn to use cream rouge I think you may like it better than the powder for an all-day makeup. You don't have to keep putting it on over and over. The cream rouge goes on immediately after the massage, the moment before you put on powder. The powder rouge goes on over the powder.

Here is a good rule to follow in applying rouge:
For a face pale:
Put the color on the cheekbone and work it downward into the fullest part of the cheek. This makes the face look longer and narrower. Then blend the color at the top of the pink smudge. This makes a triangle with one point down and one

FRENCH WILL SEEK ARMS VIEW SUPPORT

Foreign Minister Carries Plea First to King Leopold III.

PARIS, March 27.—(UP)—An intensive campaign to bolster France's position on armaments was begun today with the departure of Foreign Minister Louis Barthou on the first of a series of visits to capitals on the continent.

Barthou left for Brussels to take up his good-will work and build up France's disarmament position in opposition to Germany's claims to the right to rearm. He had lunch with high officials in Brussels and an audience with King Leopold III, the new monarch of the Belgians.

His visit was of more than passing significance, observers agreed, Barthou planning to save at all costs the traditional Franco-Belgian entente and his historic brotherhood in arms, threatened with a break-up recently.

Many forces are joining in the threat to Franco-Belgian unity, the most sensational development being the recent utterances of Prime Minister Dr. Broqueville in Brussels, who belittled the French by implying that Belgium might accede to Germany's rearmament demands.

FRENCH AMBASSADOR CLARIFIES PARIS POSITION

LONDON, March 27.—(UP)—Important developments in the Franco-Belgian security negotiations were reported today.

Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, in a conference with the French ambassador, Andre Charles Corbin, asked: First, does France distinguish between "guarantees of execution" and general guarantees in case of aggression; second, if she distinguishes, what kind of guarantees are necessary in each instance, and third, is France willing to subscribe to regional instead of a general guarantee system.

Corbin replied: First, France admitted a theoretical distinction but believes there would be no difference in practice, because in case the convention were violated it presumably would be by armed force and sanctions, or penalties, would be essential; second, he asked what guarantees Britain would offer, and, third, he agreed to a regional agreement but asked in turn how far Britain proposes to extend such a pact.

GENEVA SEEN AS SITE FOR NEXT CONFERENCE

GENEVA, March 27.—(AP)—With the entire question of disarmament in peril tonight because of conflicting views of various leading powers, certain officials discussed the possibility of holding the 1935 naval conference here regardless of the outcome of present European negotiations for an arms holiday.

No decision may be reached immediately on the seat of the naval parley, but opinion inclined to the belief that this city might be chosen, rather than Tokyo, London or Washington, Tokyo probably would be eliminated because of the distance of that capital from other parts of the world, it was stated.

BEAUTY IS SENTENCED IN 'LOVE-NEST' KILLING

PARIS, March 27.—(UP)—Germaine Huot, a famous beauty, was sentenced to 12 years in prison today for the fatal "love nest" shooting of the late Pierre Causeret, prefect of the Bouches-du-Rhone department. She already has served one year awaiting trial.

NANCY PAGE

Hot Cross Buns Are a Tradition in the Page Family

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.

The Easter season would not have been complete in the Page or the Miller household had there not been some hot cross buns on the table on Good Friday morning.

These two families did not serve them all during Lent as is now becoming the custom but kept them for this special day. It was a tradition with them. Nancy telephoned Lois and told her she would make enough buns for both families. "I'll get Peter to run me over this evening after dinner and we'll bring your Good Friday buns. Now don't object, because I am baking them anyway and it is as easy to bake two pans as one. They'll be over and I do hope they'll be good."

Nancy followed her traditional recipe which is as follows:

She scalded one cup of milk and while it was still hot she added to it one-quarter cup sugar, three tablespoons butter. Meanwhile she crumbled one yeast cake in a small amount of lukewarm water, added a pinch of sugar and set the yeast in a warm place.

When it was foamy the milk had cooled to lukewarm temperature. She had found time to sift, measure and lift the cups flour with one-half teaspoon salt.

She added the frothy yeast to the lukewarm milk mixture. And stirred in an egg well beaten. Then she put in the flour and one-quarter cup currants which she had washed well, drained and dried in the warming oven. She added one-eighth cup citron peel. The mixture was beaten until smooth, covered and set in warm place to rise. When doubled in bulk it was kneaded, covered and set to rise again. Then it was kneaded, shaped into large buns or biscuits. When shaped these were put on baking sheet or pan, about one inch apart. When buns were one inch apart, when egg yolk and milk, the top of each was washed in two straight lines at right angles to each other. The buns are baked for 20 minutes.

Social News of Varied Interest

The program meeting was held at the Atlanta Woman's Club on Monday afternoon by the department of forestry and natural resources, of which Miss Virginia Hardin is chairman. The planting of a tree in honor of Mrs. Max E. Land, president of the club. Appropriate ceremonies with dedication by Mrs. Thomas C. Harris, attended the planting, after which Mrs. J. B. McNelly sang "The Tree of Life." The subject of "The Relations Between the Americas" was given by Juan B. Arias, ambassador from Panama, and the musical numbers were furnished by the CWA orchestra. Miss Frances Hunt, the soprano, sang several songs, and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Bonnie Crowe, chairman of music. Assisting Miss Hardin in plans for the program were the members of her committee including Medames J. K. Pancher, J. R. Bachman and T. J. Ripley.

Miss Frances Phillips, bride-elect of April, was entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower given by Misses Julia Etheridge and Margaret Goss, at the home of Miss Manley's home on Moreland avenue. The guest list included 36 friends of the bride-elect. Interesting games were played. In a musical contest, the prize was won by Miss Lois Waldrop. The gifts were presented in an indoor treasure hunt. Tea was served by Mrs. W. C. Clifton. The entries of the Linwood Garden Club met Thursday with Mrs. John F. Clegg at her home on Blue Ridge avenue. Mrs. C. A. Moore, the president, announced the plans for the convention of the Garden Club of Georgia, which is to be held in Atlanta in April. Mrs. Moore, Mrs. W. M. Leonard and Mrs. A. N. Anderson were elected as delegates to the convention. Mrs. Charles Sheldon Jr. as alternate. Ray Hastings was the guest speaker and gave an interesting talk on "All Spring Flowers." The entries of the garden division of the Women's Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association met recently at the home of Mrs. E. K. Rev. 217 East Wesley avenue. Mrs. H. M. Pennington assisted in entertaining and members voted to promote a project in April to raise money for the club.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield—How should a woman treat a husband who is cold to her? I have petted and spoiled my husband to death. I wait on him as if he were a baby. He accepts all these attentions with a cold indifference. He isn't affectionate with me. When I put my arms around him he pushes me off and it never occurs to him to show me little courtesies that I show him.

Answer: It is mighty seldom that a man recognizes the extent to which she has spoiled her child and equally seldom that a wife recognizes the extent to which she has spoiled her husband. Neither the child nor the husband is fit to live with after mother and wife have finished their deadly work.

There is a woman of my acquaintance who is a born man-spoiler. She mothers her husband with affection and attention and even wonders why he is so cold to her. It does not occur to her that she is entirely responsible for his selfishness. He loves her and admires her, yet a good part of the time he ignores her.

If he comes in tired from golf she insists that he lie down. His protest that he doesn't want to lie down only makes her more determined to get him on the sofa. When he sits and reads she hovers over him to be sure the light falls on the page at just the right angle. If he is too warm she tries to take off his coat, and if he sneezes she puts wood on the fire or turns up the thermostat.

True, everything she does is an effort to express her love and solicitude for him, but each would be happier if she lay off occasionally. The husband, on the whole, matter is that he is utterly selfish and never makes the slightest advance to her.

A wife can't make a man affectionate by reproaching him with coldness. Reproaches only harden his hide. She can't get expression of affection by demanding it. Demands only irritate him. She can't fight her way to his arms when he is pushing her off. If he is naturally cold she can't change him. But if he is being cold by her attentions she can give him air and if he is being spoiled by her sweet-talk she can starve him for a while. Both will be refreshed by change of policy.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield—My mother is a widow with three children. I am the oldest and am 18. She goes out with men while I stay at home and nurse the little girls. She never allows me to go anywhere without taking them yet she goes to the movies and to dances with her beaux. Mother criticizes me to my boy friend, tells him that I am lazy and no account, until he has changed toward me. He is disgusted with the quarreling that goes on at our house and now asks me to meet him in other places. Can you suggest a way for me to get on with my mother? I know I am due to have a little freedom but I don't know how to get it. Can you help me? MISTREATED.

Answer: Of course you are due to have a little freedom, dear child. You should have the privilege of entertaining your boy friend in your own living room without being subjected to the embarrassment of having your mother willfully abuse you in his presence. Old beyond your years, because of the responsibilities you have shouldered, you must think your way out of the fix you are in.

Perhaps you can sit down and have a quiet talk with your mother and make her see how unjust she is to you. Don't lose your temper, don't be impertinent to her; just tell her that you are willing to take turns about with her tending the home fires and nursing the children but that you don't think it fair for her to dump the whole responsibility on you. Tell her that if she will allow you to entertain your boy friend in the living room once or twice a week and help you make the visits pleasant that you will keep the children and let her go out with her friends the rest of the time. No doubt she will trade with you on that basis.

How to Bid Slams

It is one of the distinguishing traits of a few who call themselves experts at the bridge table that when they pick up a hand of well above average strength they shiver with fear that their poor partner (far less wise than they) will not know what to do with the cards he holds and that therefore it is up to the opening bidder to take full charge of the bidding. Actually, forcing opening bids should be made only when the hand is so rich in honor-tricks that partner cannot be expected to hold sufficient strength to make a free response, for a forced response often results in a little that can be of conclusive value except negatively.

Take as an example the hand below, which I submit to you by a correspondent with a request for its correct bidding.

West, dealer.

East and West vulnerable.

♠ K Q 7 3 ♠ A 10 7 6 5
♥ A K Q 5 ♥ 7 6 4
♦ A 9 ♦ 10 8 7
♣ K 10 7 ♣ S A 2

My correspondent states that he opened the bidding with two no-trump, to which his partner responded with three spades, which he raised to four, and that the partnership stopped at a small slam in spades when a grand slam was made laid down.

"I should we have bid the hands?" he inquires.

In bridge as in life the simplest course is usually best. While West holds a hand of very unusual strength (more than five-plus honor-tricks) the distribution is not quite good enough for an opening forcing bid of two no-trump. There remain the alternatives of two no-trump and one spade. Either of these bids can be made, but I prefer the latter. I prefer the approach bid of one spade. One is that I prefer to approach rather than drive, and the other is that I do not know what to do if my partner responded to two no-trump with a bid of three no-trump. Should I then bid four hearts and then bid a possible game in no-trump or spades?

Taking all the factors into consideration, I think my correspondent and his partner might well have solved their bidding problem as follows: (Figures after bid refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

West East
4NT(3) 5NT(3)
6♥ or 7♠(4) 7♠

Pass

1—With 3 honor-tricks and five trumps, the raise to game is justified.

2—West need not show his second suit. He might have held bid 2 to 3 honor-tricks; instead he has more than five. Five spades must be safe and a slam is quite probable. By placing valuation West can place not less than four spades and probably five in his partner's hand, together with honors in both diamond and club suits.

3—Showing West the spade suit and the club suit.

4—I think West should bid seven spades, not six hearts. Doubtless he will elicit a further bid from East and the grand slam should not be missed.

As a matter of fact, with this particular hand a grand slam should be reached if the opening bid is two no-trump. Opposite an opening two no-trump bid, the responding hand is so strong that it should see that the Misses Hendon, Suttles Honor Miss Howard.

A lovely affair of Saturday, March 24, was the tea given by Misses Lois Hendon and Jane Suttles at their home, 2290 Peachtree road, in honor of Miss Sara Howard, a bride-elect of April.

The spacious living room was artistically decorated with roses, snapdragons and sweet peas.

In the dining room the bridal idea was carried out in the decorations. The center was a bed of sweetheart roses and snapdragons.

A novel surprise was the radio announcement and special music dedicated to Miss Howard.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Tyler Bullock and Carl Hood. Guests included Miss Howard, Miss Edna Redd, Miss Louise Hendrix, Miss Mae Bowman, Mrs. Laurie Guy, Miss Edna Pounds, Mrs. Zella Wolfe, Miss Mary Jeffries, Mrs. Mary Pearson, Miss Mary Taylor, Mrs. Clinton Davidson, Miss Josephine Jones, Mrs. Charles Ward, Mrs. Bill Gordon, Mrs. Louise Canaday.

JOE W. RAY PRESIDENT OF NEW DANCE GROUP

A new social club headed by young Atlanta prominent in civic and business circles was announced Tuesday. It will be called the Club Hi-Hat. Joe W. Ray is president and Paul Scott, secretary. Other officers are M. Chotas, treasurer, and Dr. Rayford W. Tharpe, George Yancey, Lewis A. Huey, W. G. Stephens Jr. and John D. Higgins. Miss Josephine Jones, chairwoman of the board of governors, F. Lloyd Nelson is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The announcement said the club has been organized for the purpose of dance and other forms of entertainment for young business and professional men. Plans have been made to hold a special Easter entertainment Saturday night at Garber hall, where the club will give weekly dances. Admission will be by membership card or invitation.

Mrs. George Ford Honored at Dinner

Numbered among the interesting small and informal parties marking the social calendar on Tuesday evening was the dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neely at their home on Piedmont avenue, complimenting Mrs. George B. Ford, of Northampton, Mass., resident trustee of Smith College. The handsomely appointed table was centered with an effective arrangement of varied spring flowers.

Covers were placed for Mrs. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. John K. Ottley, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bush-Brown, Mrs. James Scott Conant, Miss Jessie Muscatelli, Mrs. Charles Currie, Mrs. Bull Moore, Miss Rachel Neely, and the hosts.

Mrs. Ford is a woman of great charm and enjoys the cultural advantage of travel in the United States and in Europe. While at present her interest is primarily in Smith College, she is the trustee resident in Northampton, her field of endeavor for her splendid work with the National Y. W. C. A., the American Association of University Women, and the National Conference on the Cause and Cure of War.

From 1899 to 1912 Mrs. Ford did editorial work with the Century Magazine under the name of Mary Neely Bliss. During the World War Mrs. Ford was three years overseas, serving as the director of personnel at the Paris headquarters of the American Red Cross, and she served for six months with the Smith College relief unit.

Easter Egg Hunt Given On March 31

The Primrose Garden Club will sponsor an Easter egg hunt and a Brookwood Hills playground on Saturday, March 31, at 3 o'clock. There will be an admission charge of 10 cents, and for additional attractions there will be a small charge. There will be many gaily decorated eggs with a golden prize egg awarded. Fascinating features will be pony rides and a grab bag, and nurses and mothers will be admitted free.

Mrs. Thorpe Fletcher is chairman of the committee in charge of the hunt, and assisting her will be members of the club, including Medames Gilbert Beer, George Campbell Jr., John Chambers, Ed Cauthorn, Logan Clarke, Roy Collier, Norman Coolidge, William Cram, Paul Dobbin, Beverly L. Doolittle, Mrs. George W. Goldsmith Jr., Eugene Haynes, L. H. Hoppe, Bolling Jones Jr., Harrison Jones, Walter Kenan, Edwin Lockridge, George Lowndes, John McCall Jr., Frank McLaughlin, John Morris, Clyde Williams, Eugene Ransom, Charles Shelton, Julian Robinson, Carlton Smith, Robert Starnes, Robert Woodruff and Kenyon Zahner.

BREAK O' DAY!

Come, Come, Now! When Did a 73-Average Become Bad Golf?

Spent several of the shining hours yesterday bending in a polite ear. Great things to hear with, ears.

A great deal of the conversation in places where loitering and leaning against counters and things is permitted, is about Jones. (This Augusta tournament has come to be as good a source of conversation as an appendectomy.)

The sum and substance of the conversation seems to be, "S'oo bad! They never come back, do they?" (This is not to be spoken without a doleful wag of the head.)

Well, for the life of me I can't see where it was a comeback. As someone said at Augusta—"Comeback from what?"

Jones wasn't coming back in the sense that he was seeking to regain anything. He had beaten the world. He had everything.

And why all this talk about failure? Tut. Tut. Men and women. You have been reading too much. I mean too many of the boys in the craft spoke of failure.

Why, the man shot 77-74-72-72. Let's get pencil and paper. Are you ready? Add! The result—294. Now divide by four. The answer? 73½. Exactly. Jones shot four rounds of golf for an average score of just one and a half strokes over par. Which is great golf.

And as I recall it was that fellow McGill who pointed out on Monday morning, in a piece written for the paper while the stragglers still were coming in from the course, that Jones was tied with Denny Shute and Walter Hagen. Shute is the British open champion.

And while I spent several hours in the clubhouse and out of it I did not hear anyone moaning about it being too, too sad about poor Denny Shute. Nor about the two dozen or so of competitive professionals and amateurs who were trailing him. No one was moaning about the national amateur champion, George Dunlap, who scored well up in the 300 field. Nor about Ross Somerville, the 1932 national amateur champion, who was worse.

Jones, if he wishes, can spend a few weeks at his game and get it back. I imagine he will have it back for the 1935 masters' tournament.

Any fellow who has an average of 73 for four rounds isn't to be wept over.

So, come, come, now. No more of this sob stuff. I'll be around again today, leaning on your counters where the hags or pretzels are. And let's have no more come-back talk. I want to write about something else.

HELP FOR THE GOLF DUBS.

That forgotten man of the golf clubs—the dub—is coming in for some attention.

George Jacobus, the president of the P. G. A., said so. The P. G. A. is to improve the standards of teaching and seek to keep out a lot of phoney instruction by incompetents.

They have all discovered that it is the mild little guy with the glasses who putters around in 100 and who goes home and kisses his wife gleefully when he breaks 100, who is the backbone of the golf clubs.

The kiss may be flavored with something out of the locker but the little guy is so happy he never notices the slightly surprised look he gets.

I think the Augusta National golf course is also going to help the dubs of the game. And if the professionals, as George Jacobus says they will, keep him in mind and see to it that he gets sound instruction he may start taking candy home when he breaks 95.

Day is dawning for the golf duffer.

THE NEW INFLUENCE.

The duffer always has approached the game of golf in all humility, asking no explanations but seeking only to know how to hold his hands, get his hips around before he begins the down swing, how to keep a straight left arm and his head down.

It never occurred to him to ask why his courses had great sand traps on them and all sorts of artificial obstructions. He got into them and cursed the sand and dropped out of the ditches and added a lot of strokes to his round.

The Augusta National course is very nearly trapless. There are a few. But most of the hazards are trees and creeks and hills AND the construction of the greens. They are so constructed that by merely placing the flag in a new spot the entire aspect of the hole is changed. New shots are needed for almost every round because any slight deviation of line calls for a new shot.

Horton Smith, who was later to win the tournament, told me on Sunday afternoon that the course at Augusta was the finest in this country. "Our average course is standardized," he said. "A shot out of the trap is just a shot. A pitch is just that. But here one may have a pitch shot on a hole and the next round be forced to play a pitch and run."

"It all depends on where he is. It's a great course for golf shots."

The duffer does all right on the Augusta course. It's architect said that an inland course didn't need sand. The first golf courses were built on the seaside links of Scotland where there was natural sand. And when they started building them inland they carted in sand and put it on them. That's the only reason we have it.

I wouldn't be surprised if the golf courses of the future

Mehlhorn Shoots 67 in Pinehurst Tourney: Crackers' First Exhibition Game Rained Out

Circus Stuff by the Crackers---But Not a Clown in the Bunch

The Constitution camera caught some of the Crackers having a great time at the Downy Brothers circus lot in Macon, where the circus and the club are training. Larry Davis, the trainer, got out Teddy, the great elephant, for the stunts. And look at Teddy laughing. The boy at the left, who is going up in the world, is Joe Palmisano, a West Point (Ga.) boy.

Just a breeze for Teddy. And at the right four of the boys are going for a ride to the park. Left to right, Buster Chatham, Freddie Neisler, Joe Palmisano and Art Jacobs. Teddy looks like some of the base runners the Crackers had in 1930. But this year the club is all set. The Crackers are doing all their clowning before the season begins. Constitution staff photo.

EDDIE PHILLIPS, CATCHER, SOLD TO LOOKOUTS

Chattanooga Buys Him Outright; Three Others Go.

By Jimmy Jones.

MACON, Ga., March 27.—Peddling of Eddie Phillips, nonchalant veteran of last year's catching staff, was about the only development of interest on a gray day in the camp of the Atlanta Crackers.

The scheduled game with the Cincinnati Red Yankigans was rained out and the teams will play tomorrow, weather permitting, at the same hour and with the same lineup.

Phillips' disposal was an outright cash deal with Joe Engel, the Chattanooga president, who put in an early bid for the catcher. The latter, bought at a nice price from the New York Yankees last year, disappointed the Crackers officials and fans as well with his lackadaisical attitude behind the plate last year and the puny .240 average that he posted in the final averages why the Crackers are getting rid of him.

Joe Palmisano, purchased from Portland, is all that Spencer Abbott asks in the way of a catcher. Palmisano has a good arm, batted .293 on the coast last year in 134 games, and is a peppery receiver.

Release of Bobby Weaver, Johnny Abbott (no relation to Spencer) and Thompson left the Crackers with only three receivers and one of these, young Bill Casey, will be farmed out for more season. The new lineups, Neisler, as originally predicted, will be the club's two catchers.

The sale of Phillips put the Crackers roster down to a workable number. Abbott will cut it down to 18 by the season opening, which is on April 17. There are a few players, including two or three fairly good-looking young pitchers, who the club is developing at Charlotte, where they can develop, Abbott says.

The Crackers were kept indoors all day today and about to action tomorrow with the return to Atlanta tomorrow. Abbott plans to use the same three pitchers announced in this morning's paper against the Reds—namely, Schmidt, Martin and Hayes.

Cap Rucker, the famous pitcher and veteran Brooklyn scout, stopped over here briefly today en route to the Dodgers' training camp at Orlando, Fla., where he will confer with Casey Stengel, the new Brooklyn manager, on players needed.

GEORGIA OPENS WITH TORONTO

ATHENS, Ga., March 27.—Georgia's baseball season will be unofficially opened here on Saturday, March 31, when the Torons (team of the International League) comes from Augusta for a game with Coach "Catfish" Smith's Bulldogs.

The regular college season will open April 6 and 7 against the Florida Gators. Other home games will include Auburn on April 13 and 14; Oglethorpe on April 27 and 28; and Georgia Tech on May 11 and 12. All these games are on Fridays and Saturdays. It has been announced that all the games will begin at 4 p. m., except the Toronto game, which begins at 3 p. m.

Letterman back and who are practicing daily are: Moorehead, catcher; Grant, third base; Webb, first base; second base; Ennis, outfield; Fraxitas, pitcher. Promising reserves include Wagon, outfield; Treadway, outfield; Anderson, first base; Nichols, pitcher; E. Costa, pitcher; Carter, catcher; Sullivan, pitcher.

A total of 17 games are on the schedule. All the teams played here will be met on their home grounds. This is Coach Smith's first season as coach, having succeeded Coach Bill White, who is now scout for the Atlanta Crackers and actively engaged in business.

Bulldogs To Play

House of David.

ATHENS, Ga., March 27.—The House of David bearded baseball nine will play the Georgia Bulldogs in an exhibition game here Wednesday, April 4, according to H. J. Stegman, athletic director.

Toronto, of the International League, will furnish the first test of the Bulldogs Saturday when they play an exhibition game here.

Inclement weather has kept the Bulldogs at indoor practices this week but Coach Vernon "Catfish" Smith expects to take the players outdoors tomorrow.

BROWNS REST.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 27.—A day of rest from the training grind was decreed today by Manager Rogers Hornsby for the Browns. The off-day was Hornsby's reward to the players for winning the recent series with the New York Giants.

BILL MEHLHORN POSTS 67 CARD

By Dillon Graham.

Associated Press Sports Writer. PINEHURST, N. C., March 27.—(P)—They call him "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, but the veteran professional is seldom off the line today as he clipped 67 strokes off par for a 67 to gain the first-round leadership in the thirty-second north and south open golf tournament.

The husky slugger, who recently changed his address from Brooklyn to Louisville, Ky., posted a card of 35-32-67 for a 2-stroke advantage over three of his professional rivals, Tommy Armour, Willy Cox and a younger star, Henry Picard, of Charleston, South Carolina.

Although a high wind blew across the course this morning and rain the afternoon brought further difficulties for some, 11 players returned scores of par 71 or better.

Mehlhorn opened his assault on Old Man Par on the 8th hole, where he sank one from off the sand green for a birdie 4. A fine approach shot three feet from the cup brought another birdie on the 10th. Mehlhorn sank putts ranging from 8 to 12 feet on three holes, the 12th, 15th and 16th, for birdies as he came blazing home in 32, but lost one on the 11th, where he overshot the green and failed to sink a 3-footer for a par.

Willy Cox equalled Mehlhorn's fine 32 on the second nine but he used up 37 blows on the front side, twice as many as Mehlhorn. Cox had a stroke, lost three birdies and an eagle, the latter on the 6th, where he holed out from off the sand.

Against the Collegians, Buford will have Kimbrell, catcher; Hasty, Crowe and Hyder, pitchers; White, first base; Whitley, second base; Herrin, shortstop; Anderson, third base, and Smith and Lee in the outfield.

Kellar Hasty, former Birmingham and Atlanta pitcher, will most likely open for the home team, with Crowe and Hyder ready for relief duty.

DOUBLETS SHIFTED.

Ed Baxter, shortstop for Buford last year, has been shifted to the outfield, since Whitley has been secured for second base and Herrin was moved to shortstop.

With the exception of the two young former Petrel stars, Buford's team is the same as that which topped the North Georgia league during the first half last season and then finished a successful year of independent baseball.

The second annual Capital City duckpin doubles tournament entry list will surpass the number of bowlers who participated in this event last year, if the way that entries are coming in thus far can be taken as an example of the number that will be on the firing line Saturday at 8 o'clock.

Jane Blick and Cliff Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Blick, Thelma James and R. D. Barze, Aline Counts and Fred P. Kellam, Isabel Ridley and George French, Dot Morris and D. I. Tignor, Bebe Bangert and "Lindy" Linstrom and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tidwell have already filed entry blanks and a number of more will be added to the list tonight with the Southern Railway ladies and Ladies' Commercial leagues scheduled to bowl in regular league play.

The entry fee is $1 per person, or $2 per couple, for the sweepstakes and this amount includes the cost of the game to be bowled. Handicaps will be based on the scratch figure of 215 per team of two persons, with each team receiving two-thirds the difference per game.

Petrels Open Season Today With Buford

By Roy White.

Oglethorpe and Buford will open their baseball schedules at 4 o'clock this afternoon at Buford. A game was scheduled for last Friday, but was postponed because of unfavorable weather. Buford was slated to play Georgia last Saturday, but its second opening was postponed, and today will mark the first baseball game for north Georgia fans.

The Petrels, under the direction of Coach Frank Anderson, held a long workout Tuesday afternoon at Herndon field and all the players appeared ready for the opening game today.

Belton Clark, former G. M. A. star; Ed Copeland, former Tech High hurler, and Lefty Dixon will likely divide the hurling duties for Oglethorpe today.

THE LINEUP.

The remainder of the team will consist of Vance, catcher; Moon, first base; Eddie Anderson, second base; McGinty, shortstop; Fisher, third base, and Wade, George and Robinson, in the outfield.

Four former Oglethorpe stars, Claude Herrin, Frank Anderson Jr., Al Kimbrell and Mumford Whitley, will play for Buford today against their former mates. Herrin and Anderson are veteran members of the north Georgia team, while Whitley and Kimbrell will appear in Buford uniforms for the first time.

Against the Collegians, Buford will have Kimbrell, catcher; Hasty, Crowe and Hyder, pitchers; White, first base; Whitley, second base; Herrin, shortstop; Anderson, third base, and Smith and Lee in the outfield.

YOUNG HURLER BLANKS YANKS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 27.—(P)—Clarence Pickrel, young right-hander, blanked the New York Yankees with only five hits today as the Boston Braves slugged out a 6-0-0 decision. The shutout was the first for the Yanks since Lefty Grove kept them from crossing the plate August 18.

Working the entire game, Pickrel fanned five Yankees and gave only two bases on balls. Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Ben Chapman, Tony Lazzeri and Red Rolfe were the only Yanks to connect safely, each getting a single.

With a five-run attack in the first inning, the Braves scored all of their runs off Three-Finger Floyd Newkirk. Jimmy De Shong gave only four hits the last five innings.

Teddy the Elephant, Is a Popular Trouper

Crackers Have Big Time With the Old Boy at Macon Training Camp.

By Jimmy Jones.

MACON, Ga., March 26.—Teddy, the big elephant with the Downy Brothers circus in winter quarters here, is an extremely good-natured and accommodating sort of animal. And he gets along perfectly well with photographers and ball players.

The Constitution photographer was down Sunday to make some pictures of Teddy and the players for the paper. The elephant was most agreeable about it and even allowed the players to clamber up his trunk with their spiked shoes on. An elephant's hide, it seems, is immune to a lot of things, including baseball spikes.

At first the ball players were afraid of Teddy and approached the elephant furtively. They thought possibly that one of the spikes might prick the elephant in a sensitive spot and they would immediately be tossed over to the river, which wasn't very far away.

It was a sight at that, little Buster Chatham alongside Teddy, and Joe Palmisano, the catcher, didn't stack up as exactly huge.

COURT COACHES, LEADING TEAMS ON WAY HERE

National Association Meet To Be Under Way For Three Days

Outstanding basketball coaches from every section of the United States will begin arriving in the city tonight for the annual meetings of the National Basketball Coaches' Association to be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Roy Mundorf, coach of the Georgia Tech team, is president of the association and together with officials of Georgia Tech will be host to the 200 or more visiting coaches during the next three days.

Dr. Menzies, of Wisconsin; Dr. Allen, of University of Kansas; and Lambert, of Purdue, head the midwest group of coaches who will appear here. Four of the country's outstanding basketball teams, the University of South Carolina, Pittsburgh, Illinois Wesleyan and North Illinois State Teachers, will give exhibitions Thursday and Friday night at the Atlanta Athletic Club as a feature of the three-day session.

Another outstanding feature of the meetings will be a rules discussion Saturday. Several changes have been recommended to President Mundorf and they will be thoroughly gone over in Saturday's session.

A man fouled in the act of shooting, moving the baskets in six feet and raising the court are the principal changes already recommended. Some coaches favor an extra try for the basket, if a goal is made, while others favor the present rule.

FACULTY LEADS.

Oglethorpe's faculty team took the lead in the school indoor basketball league with a record of four wins and no losses. The Petrel faculty defeated the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, 8 to 1, Monday night. Members of the faculty team are Perez, Jones, Alward, Lanier, England, Overton, Patrick, Morrow and V. Anderson.

Sherbet Shoot At Capitol Today

The Capital Gun Club's bi-weekly silver sherbet shoot will be conducted today by Al Fries in the absence of Secretary Jack Ray, who is in Florida for the annual Florida state trapshoot. Members will fire away for the silver sherbet but the winner will not be announced until Tuesday. The reason for this is that only Tuesday is on intimate terms with the handicapping system used at the Capital. A large crowd is expected today, as the trophy shoots are very popular.

B. H. S. GOLFERS ARE SELECTED

Jack Ezzell, Red O'Neal, Allen Leiber and Billy Stevens, with Billy Comer, as an alternate, have been definitely selected on Boys' High golf team for the 1934 season. The selections in the order were named Tuesday, following another qualifying round on the Druid Hill course. Ezzell was chosen captain some time ago.

Eight definite dates have been scheduled for the Purple golfers and two others with Tech. High during May will be added to the card later. A preliminary match with Emory's freshmen will be played this afternoon on the West End course.

Boys' High will file its entry for both the Georgia interscholastic and the Southern interscholastic tournaments to be held in May. The G. I. A. A. will be at Savannah, May 4, and the Southern will be played at Charlotte, May 18.

Opening of the schedule has been set for April 6, with Savannah, at Savannah. Others on the card include Baylor and McCallie, at Chattanooga; Charleston and Athens High.

The schedule: April 6-Savannah at Savannah. April 13-McCallie at Chattanooga. April 14-Baylor at Chattanooga. April 20-Athens at Athens. April 27-Charleston at Charleston. May 4-G. I. A. A. at Savannah. May 11-Athens, here. May 18-Southern at Charlotte.

THIRD RANKING STAR FRESHMAN AT CALIFORNIA

Got Leave of Absence To Seek Place on U. S. Squad.

By Jack Troy.

Lester Stoefen, the 22-year-old college freshman of national tennis, who ranks third in the country, announced yesterday that unless he makes the Davis cup team this year he will quit tennis and return to the University of California and complete his education.

It's Davis cup or retirement for Stoefen. He made this perfectly clear as he dabbed at a splotch of ink on his freshly pressed flannel trousers.

Which was the result of violently shaking a fountain pen to see if it was filled.

Stoefen gives you the impression of being a great big kid who would rather be playing jokes and having fun than anything else.

He gave up on the ink spot. And turned to the telephone. "How do you get ink off flannel trousers?" he asked the young lady at the desk. "Well, I really don't know," she replied alertly, "but you might try a knife."

MUST MAKE GOOD. The discussion got back around to his future plans and he said that it was definitely a Davis cup berth or retirement. "I got a leave of absence from Southern Cal so I could return if I chose to do so."

"If I don't do any good this year I plan to complete my education," the tall, blond viking declared.

It was quite a day. There was a trip to the hairdressers' convention, where they are demonstrating the latest thing in the spiral reverse and then a look in at Lester Stoefen, firing the American twist at George Lott in a practice singles match.

The American twist, as served by the ever-kidding Lester Stoefen, is harder to handle than eight inebriated gentlemen in a canoe.

It is to say that George Lott was having his share of troubles in attempting to return the fiendishly twisting smashes which Stoefen places at back or forehead as they get the strength or weakness of his opponent.

PLAY DELAYED. The program in the Atlanta invitation delayed a second day, with the exception of a few singles matches, because of the weather. Stoefen and Lott went over to the Atlanta Tennis Club and practiced on the soft court.

The Biltmore courts were too wet for play and there were a few first-round singles played at the Biltmore and the Atlanta Tennis clubs.

Lott and Stoefen were glad of the chance to work out, even under the existing conditions. Their last competitive play was on the boards in the national indoor singles and shot hop faster on hardwood and they got the need of trying out their strokes on the slower clay.

After watching the six foot, three and one-half inch Stoefen in action, it became a matter of wonderment how Bryan Grant, diminutive "giant killer" manages to put up such a great battles against him.

Stoefen, who handles himself with consummate grace, can go clear across the court in two strides. He plays in a seemingly effortless manner and seems equally proficient in backhand, forehand, baseline, volley or lob shots.

HIS STRONG POINT. But his service is the really strong point in his game. He has a great change of pace. He seems to serve harder than Tilden and is very accurate. He smashes serves and the tricky twist shot in the same way. You never know when it is coming.

Stoefen had his service broken only three times in the national indoor singles. He lost one to Frank Shields, No. 1 ranking star, and two to Gregory Mangin, whom he defeated for the title.

He took 25 straight from Borotra, the French star. He would send a first serve to Borotra on the first and then a spin to his forehead on the second. He would then run to the net. It takes a tremendous job to get a ball in his reach. He never played to Borotra's backhand because "that fellow will kill you with backhand shots," Stoefen said.

If weather permits Atlantans will have their first chance to see Stoefen in action today. He is scheduled to meet Molly Williamson in the first round.

Lott is to play Howard Moss.

Winn and Crussell Down for Battle Another chapter in the most bitter rivalry between two local wrestlers of recent years will be written next Monday night at the Fair Street arena, Fair street and Capitol avenue, when Hugh Winn and Bill Crussell face each other once more.

Bill Crussell has not appeared before his legion of faithful friends for more than a month, because of the injuries he received in a match with Freddie Lassiter. However, the breaks have healed and Bill is in splendid physical condition. He beat Winn for the Georgia and southern titles in the light-heavyweight class just one week before Lassiter injured him, and Bill is sure he can do it again. Winn has only lost that one match in over four years, and now claims the championships as his to have and to hold.

Both have posted $100 with the boxing commission to guarantee their appearance, although this is hardly necessary because of their mutual dislike.

In addition to the Winn-Crussell headline match a grudge fight of last Monday will be continued. Freddie Lassiter and Gentleman John Mauldin will box 10 rounds, using the lightest gloves permissible.

A fiery preliminary will top off next Monday night's card.

Chief Chewchki Uses Black-Jack on Foe BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 27.—(P)—It cost a wrestler $100 and an indefinite suspension by the state athletic commission today for attacking his opponent with a black-jack.

Chief Chewchki, Oklahoma Indian, drew the fine and George Zaharian was his opponent last night. In addition, the Chief faces a charge of carrying concealed weapons April 12 in police court.

The Chief pulled the weapon from his trunk during the contest when they were trying to decide the third and last fall. He began beating Zaharian over the head with it. The referee, Mac Scholier, wrestled it away from Chewchki and used it to make the Indian break a hold.

How Are You, Pal?

Les Stoefen, who has that how-high-is-up, far-away look in his eyes, and George Lott posed for the above picture yesterday as they engaged in a practice round at the Atlanta Tennis Club. Stoefen and Lott both are in the upper bracket and the picture gives a good idea what to expect if and when they meet during the Atlanta invitation tournament. The two national stars are both set on making the Davis cup team. Lott was a doubles member last year. Staff photo by Holloway.

GOLF LEAGUE MEETS TONIGHT

MEETS TONIGHT

A meeting of prospective members of the North Georgia league will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the Ansley Park Golf Club.

A reorganization of the league which was abandoned last year has been planned and tonight's meeting has been called to complete plans for the year's play.

West End, Ansley Park, Inglewood, Forrest Hills, Marietta and Coosa Country Club, Rome, Ga., were former members of the league. Griffin and Newman have indicated their intention of joining a similar league.

Any other clubs within 100 miles of the city are urged to have a representative present tonight.

West End Club To Meet Tonight

The annual meeting and election of officers of the West End-L. & N. Golf Club will be held at 7 o'clock tonight at the clubhouse on Donnelly avenue.

In addition to the election of officers and general business meeting, plans for the summer tournaments will be discussed and outlined.

DEATH CLAIMS IRWIN M. HOWE

CHICAGO, March 27.—(P)—Irwin Martin Howe, 68, dean of the baseball figure men and official statistician of the American league, died last night after an illness of three months.

Howe, one of the picturesque figures in baseball, was stricken last December 28 with a kidney ailment. Two operations were performed and he seemed to be progressing nicely when pneumonia set in.

Born on a farm in southern Minnesota, Howe deserted the rural life at the age of 22 and came to Chicago to learn the printing business. He dabbled about as a baseball player but an injury to his arm ended his ambitions along that line. He then became a printing salesman and later began the compilation and distribution of baseball records. He designed the official score blank now in use throughout the major and minor leagues. For many years, he was secretary of the Chicago Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Buresh To Meet Stecher Friday Stanley Buresh and Al Stecher will headline the regular weekly wrestling card Friday night at the city auditorium. It will be a two-out-of-three fall, two-hour limit affair.

In the one-hour semi-final, Ted Saris, of New York, will meet Charlie McClain, former Drake University football and track star.

Frank Remill and Young American will open the show in a brief preliminary.

BILLY REESE, GILBERT HALL WIN MATCHES

Four Singles Events Are Played; Tourney Resumed at Biltmore Club.

By Jack Troy.

Wet courts and a sudden drop in temperature notwithstanding there was scattered firing in the Atlanta invitation tennis tournament late yesterday afternoon as four singles matches were played at the Piedmont Driving Club and the Atlanta Tennis Club courts.

Four seeded players won their first-round matches in straight sets. Gilbert Hall, seeded No. 4, defeated Malcolm Reybold, 6-2, 6-2; Billy Reese, seeded No. 3, vanquished Dr. Ralph Aiken, 6-0, 6-0; Mahon Courts, seeded No. 6, triumphed over Tom Tumlin, 6-3, 6-3; and Burtz Boullware, seeded No. 7, eliminated Bill Leide, 6-1, 6-2.

WET COURTS. Just as it seemed the weather would completely delay the start of the tournament a second day, the above players got together and decided to cast their fortunes on wet courts.

The results went true to form, with Reese's love victory standing out as the feature of the day. Gilbert Hall, who ranks 14th nationally, won as he pleased, as did Boullware. Tumlin gave Courts a battle in the second set.

The tournament will return to the home base, the Biltmore Club, at 11 o'clock this morning. Twelve singles matches are scheduled. Doubles pairings will be made and play begun in the afternoon, probably at 3 o'clock.

Feature matches will bring together Lester Stoefen, seeded No. 1, and leader of the upper bracket, and Molly Williamson, round Atlanta star, at 11 o'clock; George Lott, seeded No. 3, and Howard Moss at 12; Bryan Grant, seeded No. 2 and head man of the lower bracket, and Jim Robinson, Emory player, at 12.

SINGLES, DOUBLES. The tournament is expected to practically get back on schedule today. All singles matches and most of the doubles will be completed.

UPPER BRACKET. 11—Lester Stoefen and Molly Williamson. 12—Brit Knox and Red Williamson. 13—Francis Brannon and Malcolm Manley. 14—George Lott and Howard Moss. 15—Nico Polles and Campbell Gillespie. 16—Lem Brockwell and Lewis Enloe.

LOWER BRACKET. 17—Bryan Grant and Jim Robinson. 18—Harry Gault and Billy Drager. 19—Marion Reese and Ed Boland. 20—Glenn Dudley and George Boynton. 21—Russell Bobbitt and Ray Fleet. 22—Hank Crawford and Francis McDonald.

Terry Not Worried Over Outfielders MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 27.—(P)—Bill Terry lets everybody else do the worrying about the fact that five of the New York Giants' seven outfielders are left-handed batsmen and that the three regulars all hit from the left side.

"Why worry about that?" asks Bill. "How many good left-handed pitchers are there in our league? Not more than two or three."

GOLF FACTS NOT THEORIES

ALEX. J. MORRISON

Alex Morrison says: A pupil of mine was practicing approach shots.

He was using a number five iron and trying to hit the ball very easy—much as he would if playing a run-up shot from the very edge of the green.

Most of this fellow's efforts sent the ball way to the left of the pin. I told him that he brought about this error through closing the clubface before striking the ball. I also added that this fault was due to too much right. He knew what to do immediately.

Instead of doing what the average player does, try to suppress the right. He simply took a firmer grip with his left hand, turned it over toward the right and thereafter his shots went straight to the hole.

The J. P. Allen & Co. feminine duckpin smashers are going in for something novel in the way of bowling organization, for Thursday evening they will open play in a brand-new ladies' doubles league consisting of six teams.

A regular schedule will be worked out and the young ladies will pick their partners to play the different teams assigned each week. It will be strictly an intercompany organization and special prizes will be worked up for the winners. Averages and team standings will be kept so that the players may know how the awards will be given.

Among some of the players from Allen's to bowl in the league will be Colli Smith, Frances Wallace, Bessie Thompson, Kay Horton, Ida Stephens, Aline Phillips, Frances Davidson, Estelle Burns, Agnes Estes, Mary Crenshaw, Evelyn Adams, Frances Gadd, Dorothy Gadd, Anne Gadd, Christine Rodgins, Ethel Elder, Adele Hull, Angel Allen, Alph Scoggins, Willie Mae Jones and Frances Crenshaw.

SAUER DEFEATS RUSSIAN STAR IN LONG MATCH

Decision Reached After More Than Hour; Roche Is Winner.

Matros Kirilenko delighted a large crowd at the auditorium last night by outwrestling Pete Sauer for an hour and saddened them when he fell into a back drop hold which defeated him after four consecutive drops, all of which shook the building.

Kirilenko wrestles, eschewing the slapping, butting and hitting. He introduced the old-fashioned full nelson hold, which is so old it is new. It had Pete Sauer running right out of the ring. He had a half nelson and a cross-bar arm lock which was a whizz.

SCISSORS. He had Sauer in the grip of two body scissors holds which lasted about 10 minutes each. He banged Pete around with a great headlock. It was the worst beating Sauer has ever taken in an Atlanta ring.

He played it cleverly, letting the Russian wear himself out. Sauer fouled too much, a habit several of the boys are getting into. But he was clever defensively. And when he got his chance he took it with effective results.

It was a really magnificent wrestling match and sent the crowd away satisfied. Kirilenko can come back again.

Bravo Roche got a verdict over Milo Steinborn in a brawl which needed only six minutes to make it an old-fashioned affair with the riot call already sent in.

LOSES HEAD. Steinborn lost his head when unable to handle Roche as they came back for the second fall. Roche had won the first. It had little wrestling in it, being greatly strong-man stuff with the 200-pounders picking each other up and tossing each other about as easily as if they had been featherweights. They went out of the ring and were battling on the floor, greatly to the delight of the crowd. Both were counted out and disqualified.

Another card was announced for next week with George Zaharian, the find in human form, as one of the principals.

Atlanta League Adds Two Teams

Two more teams were admitted to the Atlanta league at their weekly meeting on Tuesday night. Atlanta Linen Supply Company and Southern Spring Bed Company came back into the fold after several years of inactivity, and will fill out this league. Roche Bell, Wagner and Louie Van Houten were chosen as umpires and it was decided to open the season on April 21.

The opening schedule is as follows: Railway Mail at Grinnell; Wagner, vs. Atlanta Linen Supply at Exposition Mills; Grinnell, vs. Southern Spring Bed at Fort McPherson; L. Van Houten, umpire.

JOHN L. COOLEY.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(P)—Wall street suffered another fit of gloom today as it learned that the administration favored a regulatory bill hearing teeth and that President Roosevelt believed the present measure seemed to meet the minimum requirements.

Stocks slid off heavily at the outset. They succeeded in finding firmer ground before noon and eventually reduced extreme losses of 1 to 2 around 4 points, but trading resumed its dullness as soon as selling pressure abated and the market seemed to find itself beset with uncertainties.

Commodities also declined while corporation bonds experienced some reaction. Industrial and rail equities had sharper losses than utilities, although the decline was broad and broke during the first half hour. Final prices on the whole were fractions to a point above the morning lows. United States Steel, Bethlehem, American Telephone, American Can, Westinghouse, United States Smelting, General Motors, General Electric and Santa Fe were off 1 to 2 or more net. Chrysler's final quotation represented a dip of nearly 3 and Case was off about as much.

Almost half the day's business of 1,603,610 shares was done in the first hour.

Wall street's reactions to impending regulation also found reflection in the market for stock exchange memberships, one of which changed hands at a $20,000 concession from the previous sale.

The news budget from trade and industry was rather light. It looked as though the steel manufacturers were to fall in line with the wage increase program, several of them already having announced such action. "American Metal Market" said steel orders and specifications had increased last week although gains were not uniform among the various sellers.

RAIL OFFERS TO MAKE PAYMENT ON INTEREST

NEW YORK, March 27.—(P)—Directors of the Denver, Rio Grande & Western railroad today offered holders of the general mortgage 5 per cent bonds, half of the interest which was due February 1, 1934, on request that they withhold presentation of coupons due August 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, until December 31, 1935.

In announcing the plan, T. M. Schumacher, chairman of the board, said it was hoped the proposed arrangement would enable the company in the list of solvent roads.

Schumacher added the plan had been worked out with the harmonious support of both the James and Van Alstyne interests, which jointly control the property.

The Rio Grande will pay interest due April 1 on the refunding and improvement mortgage bonds of 1928 and of one-half on February 1, 1934, coupons, and agreeing to withhold presentation of the coupons maturing August 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, until December 31, 1935.

The general mortgage 5s are junior bonds of the company, said Schumacher, and the plan is "an opportunity to co-operate in avoiding a default under the mortgage by accepting payment of one-half on February 1, 1934, coupons, and agreeing to withhold presentation of the coupons maturing August 1, 1934, and February 1, 1935, until December 31, 1935.

Brokers' Views

STOCK OPINIONS.

YENNER & BEANE.—The immediate outlook in our opinion favors a degree of reaction in price movements under the new developments, but no conclusive trend was indicated on the upside. We believe that Tuesday's performance was inconclusive, and the market is likely to continue to fluctuate between 98 and 100.

DOBB & CO.—We believe that the market is sufficiently liquid to handle a moderate advance in price, but we do not expect any very great extent for the time being.

COTTON OPINIONS.

YENNER & BEANE.—Washington news continues to agree that cotton is inclined to the view, however, that cotton may decline itself from stocks after the passage of the Bankruptcy bill.

BEER & CO.—We still favor buying cotton, but we believe the market is likely to continue to fluctuate between 98 and 100.

HURNARD BROS. & CO. TO DOBB & CO.—We believe that the market is sufficiently liquid to handle a moderate advance in price, but we do not expect any very great extent for the time being.

LIVINGSTON & CO.—Confidence in the stability of the market has been somewhat shaken and further liquidation may follow unless after a period of consolidation.

By BERNARD S. O'HARA.

NEW YORK, March 27.—(P)—The curb list rested at a lower level at the end of today's session. Alcohol, specialties and some of the oils and metals suffered major recessions. Utilities lost fractions to around a point.

Unfavorable reaction in brokerage circles to the administration's proposal to address to strict exchange regulation prompted a volume of selling at the opening. Leading issues declined 1 to 2 points. However, offerings on the curb and dealings reverted to their former dullness.

A mild recovery in the late trading lifted prices moderately from their lows. Issues finishing 1 to 2 or more lower included Aluminum Company of America, American Gas & Electric, Cellulose Corporation, Hiram Walker, Gulf Oil, Standard Oil of Indiana, Swift International and Waco Aircraft. Electric Bond & Share yielded fractionally.

Transfers approximated 305,000 shares compared with 246,000 yesterday.

Exchange Seat Prices

Continue to Decline

NEW YORK, March 27.—(P)—New York Stock Exchange seat prices slumped today as Wall Street learned of President Roosevelt's demand for a trading regulation bill "with teeth."

Three memberships sold at the market's opening, at $100,000, $85,000 and $60,000. The low price was off $20,000 from the previous sale, reported yesterday, and down more than $100,000 from the value ruling a short time ago.

Yesterday's sale was at $112,000, the lowest for any year since 1924, with the exception of the depression year 1932. In that year a seat was transferred as low as $65,000, which was the lowest since 1919.

The 1929 record price was $925,000.
